Cause of Trouble

The closing of the Lithuanian port of Memel, depriving Poland of an outlet to the sea, has brought near-war to Europe. The League of Nations is expected to avert actual ruptures.

INSULT DENOUNCED WARMLY BY SENATOR REED BEFORE BOARD

Missourian Attacks Secretary Mellon In Chicago Talk

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The political pot was boiling here today following a vitriolic speech delivered by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri before the Cook County Real Estate Board. The high light of the addresses was Senator Reed's denunciation of Samuel Insull for his alleged aid in electing Frank L. Smith as senator from Illinois.

Avoiding the mention of Mr. Insull by name, the fiery Missourian referred to him as "the head of the public service corporations."

Senator Reed also attacked Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon for his financial assistance in the Pennsylvania elections and assailed the principals in the Teapot Dome disclosures. Centering his fire on Smith and Insull, Senator Reed said:

"After he is seated in the senate, whom will Smith represent? Did the shrewd investor in public franchises make a mistake when he invested in a United States senator? Is the man who accepted this stupendous sum of money free to consider only the interests of the Republic?"

Is there anything sinister in this effort to elect a member to the senate when it is paralleled by a nationwide movement to consolidate many if not all public service corporations under one management, and that management in the hands and subject to the control of the genial gentleman who produced the necessary thousands of dollars to promote the nomination and election of Mr. Smith of Illinois?"

Coinciding with Senator Reed's speech, it was learned that Mr. Insull has made a written offer to appear before the slush fund committee and answer the questions he refused last winter. It is believed in some quarters this move will forestall the threatened prosecution on the contempt charges.

Turning his guns upon Secretary Mellon, Senator Reed declared that Mellon put up $25,000 to the election fund of Senator George Wharton Pepper.

"It remained, however, for the secretary of the treasury, from his position in the cabinet, to give to the picture the final touch of sanctity when with impious insolence he declared the gathering of the slush fund to have been as justifiable as collecting money for the church of God," Senator Reed added.

Discussing the Teapot Dome case and the nomination and election of President Harding, Reed said he was "convinced that not one-half the story of the loot of the oil lands had been told."

COLD SPELL HALTS MAHONING FLOODS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 2.—The rise in the Mahoning River was expected to be halted today by the continued cold weather. The river last night was higher than at any time since the 1913 flood.

The Bessemer plant of the Republic Iron and Steel company, employing 1,000 men, shut down last night because the plant was unable to get hot metal from the Hazelton plant on account of the railroad tracks being covered by the high waters.

A mother and baby stranded in an automobile on the Warren-Delightful Road, when the motor stalled, were rescued by deputy sheriffs.

At Warren last night, police and firemen worked frantically to save the city from a flood, as a lake of water formed on the north side. Rafts were used to rescue several persons who had been marooned by the rising waters.

DAYTON MEN KILLED AT RAIL CROSSING

DAYTON, O., Dec. 2.—Funeral arrangements were being made today for the bodies of W. D. Kenney, 64, and L. H. Childress, 30, fatally hurt when the auto in which they were riding was hit by a southbound B. and O. passenger train here late Thursday. Their car was demolished.

Kennett was superintendent, and Childress an agent, of the Western and Southern Life Insurance company. It was more than an hour after the accident before their mangled bodies were identified.

DAN SHAY SUICIDES

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 2.—Dan Shay, former manager of the Kansas City Club of the American Association is dead today. He died late yesterday with a bullet imbedded in his brain. It is believed he shot himself. He was found unconscious in his room Wednesday night.

MURDER DEFENDANT ARGUED WITH SLAIN MAN SAYS ATTORNEY

Death Of Mother Of Juror May Halt Lillien-dahl Case

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Dec. 2.—Willis Beach, on trial with Mrs. Margaret Lillien-dahl for the murder of her husband, had a violent quarrel with the slain man nearly a year ago, it was stated in court today in the opening defense statement.

Edison Hedges, Beach's counsel, told the jury that his client called Dr. Lillien-dahl a "damn fool," and that the doctor retaliated with the same characterization. Hedges added, however, that the two men later made up their differences and became better friends than ever.

Beach was to face a jury and deny he killed Dr. Lillien-dahl today.

With the state's case completed and Justice Luther H. Campbell pushing every point in an effort to force a speedy conclusion of the trial, the possibility that death may take a hand to halt the introduction of testimony was indicated as court opened.

The mother of Mrs. Grace Wingate, juror No. 2, is critically ill and death is a matter of hours, it was learned. George W. Wingate, the juror's husband, and cashier of the Union National Bank, Atlantic City, came here to make every effort to obtain his wife's release so she may be with her mother.

He asserted that both prosecution and defense counsel were told that Mrs. Wingate's mother was seriously ill, but nevertheless she had been forced to serve. If death does intervene, it is likely that court will be adjourned and Mrs. Wingate excused under guard of a deputy to attend the funeral.

A bed-ridden witness, Mrs. Lillian N. Tozer of Cloverdale, N. J., is to testify for the defense. Her testimony is expected to establish an alibi for Beach, who insists he was not at the murder scene when Dr. Lillien-dahl was slain on the morning of September 15.

Mrs. Tozer has been an invalid for several weeks. She may be carried into court on a stretcher, as was Jane Gibson in the Hall-Mills trial.

There will be about thirty witnesses for Beach and sixty-three more for Mrs. Lillien-dahl, who also will take the stand, it was announced by counsel. The defense will revive again the story of two Negro bandits whom the widow blamed for the murder of her elderly husband.

ELEVENTH BOMBING HARASSES POLICE

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Less than ten minutes after Chief of Police Michael Hughes had adjourned a meeting of his police captains, at which he told them the "gangster bombing disgrace" had gone far enough and must stop, bomb number eleven in the series that has marked the progress of the latest gang war, was exploded. It damaged a two-story building on W. Madison St., said to be headquarters for the Bertse-Zuta-Skid more faction.

The meeting of police captains had been called, it was understood at the instigation of Mayor William Hale Thompson, who is said to be enraged over the widespread publicity given "Chicago's bloody gang war." The mayor characterized newspaper accounts as grossly exaggerated.

SHIP ATTACKED

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Six Chinese sampans attacked the British steamship Siangtan sixteen miles below Ichang, killing the second engineer, the quartermaster and another member of the staff and making the captain a prisoner, said an admiralty communique this afternoon. The British gunboats Bee and Gnat are enroute for the scene of the outrage.

SIX INJURED WHEN TRAIN STRIKES BUS

AKRON, O., Dec. 2.—Six persons today were reported recovering from injuries suffered when a freight engine crashed into an N. O. P. and L. company cross-town bus at the South Street railroad crossing here last night. Several others were reported injured but were not taken to hospitals. John Harnussek, 49, watchman at the crossing, was most seriously injured. It is believed he attempted to warn the bus driver of the approaching engine and was caught in the crash.

Witnesses said the driver, A. L. Houn, stopped his bus and, seeing no warning at the crossing, proceeded on to the track when the engine appeared and struck the rear of the bus. Calhoun was uninjured.

The injured include: Mrs. Emma Gay, 25, S. G. Himler, 31; Frank Sweet, 28; Myrtle Clark and John Zurschmiede, 33.

BEACH WILL TESTIFY IN OWN DEFENSE

"I Could Win Now" Remus Asserts

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 2.—"I could go to the jury now and win," George Remus, on trial for the murder of his wife Imogene, declared confidently today.

"I'll be acquitted. I'm sure of that. I've been watching this jury and I like the way they seem to react to the testimony."

"What splendid witnesses Remus has had."

"In the twenty-one years I have spent in the courtroom as a lawyer, I have never seen a better witness, or one who commanded more respect, who's intonation was so good, who's demeanor was so perfect as John T. Rogers, the St. Louis reporter who testified in my behalf on Wednesday. Wasn't he superb?"

"I'm a pessimist in law cases. It always has been my policy to regard the case from the other side. But I am not a pessimist in this, my own case. If Remus loses and has to go to the electric chair, he will go with a smile, but Remus is no going to lose."

Remus was asked why he has been so passive in court. Except yesterday, when he resented being referred to by an assistant prosecutor as "Remus the Rat," he has been strangely quiet for days. This demeanor is at variance with the theatrical Mr. Remus' natural inclinations.

"Well," Remus replied, "I couldn't testify. It would be much better for Elston (his counsel) to do that. However, no one can convince Remus that he is now crazy."

And Remus, who has not once expressed regret over shooting his wife, smiled cryptically.

Remus said he thought John S. Berger was a fine defense witness, too. Berger, a boyhood friend of Remus' is a wealthy Los Angeles promoter of expositions and world's fairs. He testified late yesterday he saw Mrs. Remus and Franklin L. Dodge, ex-prohibition enforcement sleuth, in "almost nude attire" in a hotel room; that they had staged liquor parties in the Claypool Hotel in Indianapolis, and that Mrs. Remus referred to Dodge as her "heavy lover." Berger said Mrs. Remus told him she and Dodge were going to have Remus killed by St. Louis gangsters, got his vast fortune, and tour the country.

The state plans to grill Berger vigorously on cross-examination today.

SOCIOLOGIST SAYS RUTH SNYDER COULD BE "SAVED;" DARROW THINKS SLAYERS WILL DIE

By BONITA WITT
Staff Writer for Central Press and Gazette

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—What will society gain if Ruth Snyder is executed?

Dr. Felix Adler of New York, head of the Ethical Culture League and an ardent opponent of capital punishment, asks that question.

In his opinion, Ruth Snyder is a woman who became possessed of one idea and all her thoughts were directed toward its realization, without thought of consequence.

"Like Napoleon, who sacrificed thousands to gain his end, believing the means he used to reach his objective of no importance, Ruth Snyder was obsessed with the single idea of getting rid of her husband," Dr. Adler says. "She took no account of anything else—everything was subordinated to the one fixed idea."

"Were she to be educated by capable teachers, Mrs. Snyder perhaps would become a useful member of society."

A jury trial, and now the New York court of appeals, have deferred the trial.

TWO INJURED WHEN ELECTRIC CARS AT DELAWARE COLLIDE

Motorman And Woman Passenger Slightly Hurt

DELAWARE, Ohio, Dec. 2.—Two persons were injured early today when two interurban electric cars collided at Kingsman Hill, three and a half miles south of here.

The cars which collided were northbound Columbus to Delaware and a south bound local car, George Zigler, motorman on the local, and a woman passenger whose identity could not be learned, were injured but the extent of their injuries could not be determined immediately after the accident.

Later it was learned that the injured woman was Mrs. Jeannette Lincoln, of Dodgeville, Wisconsin, and that neither she nor the motorman were seriously hurt.

The local car was running late, according to the report, because of high water encountered near Prospect. In some manner the motorman became confused over signals and failed to meet on a switch. Neither car was turned over, and though a number of passengers were thrown from their seats none was seriously hurt.

JURY ACQUITS BARTLETT OF GROCERY STORE ROBBERY HERE

Troy Bartlett, Clarksburg, W. Va., was exonerated of a charge of participating in the hold-up of The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. branch store, Main and West Sts., by a jury in Common Pleas Court, Thursday afternoon acquitting him of an indictment by the grand jury for robbery.

Receiving the case at the conclusion of a two-day trial, the jury deliberated one and one-half hours, reaching a verdict at 5:30 p. m.

Bartlett based his chief defense on an alibi that he stole an automobile in Jamestown prior to the time the hold-up took place, drove nearly to Washington, C. H., before abandoning the machine, and then slept in a barn all night.

The Clarksburg youth was released after the verdict was returned and intended to spend the night in Xenia before returning to his home in Clarksburg, accompanied by his father, Friday.

M'NARY-HAUGEN OPPONENTS PICKED FOR FARM COMMITTEE

Farm Bloc Members Alarmed By Plan To Seat Opponents—Retailatory Measure Plan Of Western Leaders

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Alarm spread through the ranks of the house farm bloc today when it was reported that an effort would be made to fill two vacancies on the agriculture committee with avowed opponents of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill.

Rep. Oldfield, (D) of Arkansas, minority whip, and Rep. Dickinson (R) of Iowa, unofficial leader of the farm bloc, have been asked to lead the movement.

The new but partially formulated "insurgent" movement in the lower branch is the direct outgrowth of the power manifested by New York and Pennsylvania delegations in the committee on committees.

These groups secured a recommendation to place Rep. E. L. Estep (R) of Pennsylvania, on the ways and means committee, which handles tariff and tax matters, before he had become a member of the house. Farm bloc leaders fear they can exercise an equally powerful control of the agricultural committee.

Sneaker Longworth has announced his opposition to Estep going on the ways and means committee and is said to have joined with other house leaders in an effort to persuade Estep to retire. Rep. Griest (R) of Pennsylvania, chairman of the state delegation, declared however, that he saw no reason why the committee's action should be revoked.

MILLIONAIRE SHOE MANUFACTURER DIES

ATHENS, O., Dec. 2.—Death of George D. Selby, 81, multi-millionaire shoe manufacturer, of Portsmouth, occurred today. Selby's skull was fractured in an auto accident near here on the night of November 23. Pneumonia set in, causing his death. His body will be taken to his late home in Portsmouth today.

Selby, at the time of the accident, was trying to repair a punctured tire on a hillside just outside of Athens. A car, driven by W. L. Roush, of Columbus, skidded, hitting Selby. Roush was exonerated of all blame for the unfortunate accident.

ROYAL AIR FORCE BARRED FROM RACES

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Pilots of the Royal Air Force will not participate in future Schneider cup races or any other contests, it was indicated here today.

The air ministry was understood to be inclined to discontinue the practice because its members' participation in such races would result in publicity and members' ship which is distasteful to the Royal Air Force as a whole and is not conducive to good discipline.

It was indicated, however, that the ministry will lend advice and possibly funds for future air contests in which British pilots participate. But the plan will have to be flown by civilian pilots.

TOUGH CONDUCTOR

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 2.—T. F. Warren, 50, Indianapolis, is in White Cross Hospital here today recovering from a gash on the right side of his face suffered yesterday according to police records, a conductor on a north side street car. According to police records, Warren pulled the emergency brake when he was in good spirits today and told jail attaches he was glad to get back to Canton. He was assigned the same cell which he occupied previous to his former trial. Prosecutor Harter has already filed application to submit the Lengel case for review, with the state supreme court. A hearing on the motion is expected to start on December 20.

FREEZING WEATHER ADDS TO SUFFERING OF FLOOD VICTIMS

Serious Conditions Along Streams in New York State

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 2.—With rain predicted for today, additional damage and hardship was feared in western New York, where floods caused by swollen streams have made many families homeless, inundated farm lands and crippled transportation.

With freezing weather predicted by the weather bureau, no relief was in sight for residents made temporarily homeless.

Several counties in southwestern New York state were the first to suffer, and flood conditions are now reported throughout the 175 miles from Syracuse to James town as the rivers spread over the Canisteo and Chautauque valleys.

One death had been reported to day. Ephraim Head was trapped in his burning house at Olean by flood waters and perished in the flames. Neighbors were unable to rescue him.

Canal traffic is at a standstill. Canal boats along the Mohawk Valley and in other localities have been unable to reach tidewater.

Damage in the Genesee Valley, where bridges have been swept away and highways are under water, runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars. At Geneva a landslide blocked the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Water rushing over the top of the Mt. Morris dam has flooded the valley below.

Although the Hudson River has risen to nine feet above normal here at Albany, it is not believed that damage will be heavy in the eastern part of the state. At Winoski, Vt., an emergency bridge was swept away.

NEW FORD ATTRACTS VISITORS TO XENIA AGENCY RECEPTION

Crowds Learn About New Model But No Car Available

Xenia obtained its first full description of the new line of Ford automobiles Friday at a public reception held at the Bryant Motor Sales, Market and Green Sts., as part of the nation-wide introduction of the new Ford models.

In thousands of communities all over the United States Friday this new line of moderate priced autos was introduced to millions of people.

Doors of the local sales agency show room, opening promptly at 8 o'clock, found a large crowd of people waiting to be admitted. Hundreds of visitors inspected the display room, which was attractively decorated for the occasion.

Literature and pictures of the various models with price lists were distributed and attendants were on hand throughout the day to explain the new and interesting features of the car, which is expected to write a new chapter in automotive history.

The only thing lacking was an actual model of the new Ford. Officials of the establishment expect to have a model for purposes of display by Monday, which will be available for public inspection for three days.

Only a limited number of models are yet available and these were originally shipped to the larger centers of population, it is explained. Ford officials are certain a model will be on hand by Monday but announcements regarding the date of the exhibition will be made later.

It is also advised that the Model T Ford will not become obsolete at an early date because the company will continue to manufacture the parts as long as any of the old cars remain in existence.

This policy was announced with first publication of plans for a radical change in the type of automobile to be produced in the Ford plants and it will be followed out officially say.

Production of the new cars now averages from sixty-five to seventy autos per day, while plans for speeding up the program to call for manufacturing 1,000 more units daily in January than is now averaged, are announced.

Henry Ford himself has said: "The new Ford embodies the best results of our experience in making 15,000,000 automobiles. We consider it our most important contribution thus far to the progress of the motor industry, to the prosperity of the country, and to the daily welfare of millions of people."

CORONER HEARD AT GROUP DEATH TRIAL

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 2.—A bullet through the neck, severing the spinal cord, caused the death of Tony Popo, Mahoning County Coroner M. Hayes testified before the jury in Judge David G. Jenkins' court in the trial of Harvey Becker, H. E. Miller and Curtis Jones, on manslaughter charges, in connection with the killing of Popo, North Jackson farm hand, October 24. The three men are the first of twelve including Squire Frank A. Eekis and Constable John Harris, to go on trial for the killing. The trial of the twelve jointly was broken up Tuesday when Harris became ill.

Most of Thursday was occupied in selecting a thirteenth juror, and taking the jury to the scene of the killing on the Joseph Schmidt farm in Milton Township.

GILES DEFINITELY POSTPONES FLIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—Captain Frederick A. Giles, British airman, today announced that he had definitely postponed his proposed air trip to New Zealand until next spring. Giles has twice been turned back after encountering bad weather.

"Experienced aviators have told me," said Giles, "that it is not wise to attempt an ocean flight during the winter, and I am inclined to believe them."

TROOPS REBEL IN SOVIET REGIMENTS

BELGRADE, Dec. 2.—Open rebellion against the government has broken out among regiments of the Soviet southern army, according to the newspaper Vreme which today prints dispatches from Bucharest quoting unconfirmed but unanimous reports from Odessa.

The rebels are reported as consisting of five regiments of infantry led by General Potekoff, an aide of the deposed Soviet leader, Leon Trotsky.

Florence's room across the hall was in perfect order. Lily stared at it. . . . Did Florence get up in time to straighten her room every morning before she went to work, for pity's sake? Or did Mrs. France do it?

"Jiminy, they must do nothing but work," thought Lily. "Every body in the house! I wonder if they expect ME to turn into a plow horse, too?" If they did they certainly were due for an eye opener, and no mistake about it!

Downstairs the telephone rang. Rushing down the steps, Lily wondered wildly if it could be her mother calling her—or her father. "Maybe they'll miss me so much that they'll let me take Pat there to live!"

But the voice on the other end of the wire was a voice she never had heard before—a woman's voice, high pitched and nasal. "Miss France?" it asked, and before Lily had time to say that she was Mrs. France Junior, it went on:

"The telephone line in the store is busy, so I just line in to ask you if you could call me up some starch and bluing right away. This is Miss Trinker. . . . I forgot to get them when I was in on Saturday night, what with hearing Pat's wedding an' all—" Lily did not wait to hear the rest of "Miss Trinker's" conversation. She banged up the receiver and flew back upstairs.

"What a place to live in—where grocery orders come over the phone!" she cried aloud to the walls of the room. "Oh, what have I done—what have I done to myself?" And she began to cry, plunging her face into her small hands.

And the worst of it, she sobbed to herself, was that Pat didn't really love her, although she had given up everything to marry him. . . . If he really cared for her, would he have left her yesterday and gone over to those cheap common Jettersons', where Elizabeth Fritz was sure to be? Would he have let her stay, locked up in the room all night, instead of banging the door down as she had hoped he would?

"Oh, no—" she wailed aloud. Suddenly she decided that she would not stay in the house any longer.

She dragged the gray bags from under the bed, and still crying and gasping, she began to throw all her things into them, helter-skelter. And all the time she was doing it, she was wondering what Pat would say—what he would think—when he came home at noon and found her gone.

She was so busy with her own thoughts that she did not hear the front door downstairs open and gently close. Quick, eager feet came running up the stairs, and Pat came into the room. In a second, his eyes took it in—the half-packed bags, the unmade bed, the tears on his bride's face.

Then he swept her into his arms, and she had her cry out with her face buried against his blue overalls that smelled of grease and gasoline and rubber—a most heavenly smell to Lily that morning.

"So!" he said, "you were going to run out on me, were you? Going to leave your old husband, eh? Desert me at the altar?"

With her lovely head against his breast, Lily nodded. "I'm the wrong wife for you, Pat!" she sobbed. "Your m-m-mother says I've got to clerk in the store, or else do the cooking—"

"This was not the exact truth. But when Lily wanted to twist the truth to her own uses, she did it without even realizing what she was doing. She had had no brothers or sisters to teach her to play fair, as Pat had had. . . . He believed her, and his mouth hardened at the corners.

"Honey, you don't have to cook," he soothed her, holding her closer and closer, and punctuating his words with hard, swift kisses. "I'm paying our board here, and you don't have to do a lick of work but look after this room and send out the laundry! But I would like you to learn to cook, and Mother's offered to teach you. She's a marvelous cook."

Lily sighed. She didn't want to learn to cook. And in her own mind she knew she never was going to try to learn. . . . There were lots of good restaurants, and there was instantaneous coffee that you could make by just pouring hot water over it—

She changed the subject. "And you left me yesterday to go over to Jettersons' to see that Fritz girl!" she sobbed softly. "You still like her."

"I do like her," admitted Pat, who was sometimes too honest for his own good. "But that's nothing. . . . I'm in love with you, and you're the only woman in this world for me. Now get that into your cute little head, and stop acting like a baby!"

He kissed her again, and then he set to work to put the room to rights with the clumsy movements of a man. He unpacked the two bags, made the bed in some sort of fashion, and dusted the furniture with his pocket handkerchief.

And, sitting on the broad window sill, with the sun in her hair, Lily watched him do it. "I must learn to do these things, darling," she said idly, laying down the buffer she had been using on her finger nails, long enough to light a cigaret. "Really I must."

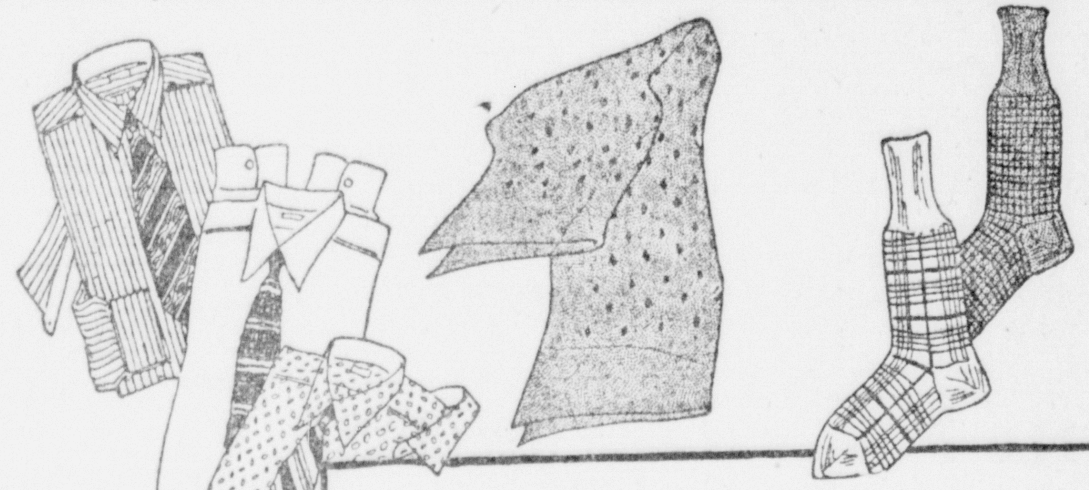

Pat looked at her, colorful as a June rose in the sunshine. She was like some lovely figure, carved out of ivory and painted with the most delicate tints imaginable. A creature of rose and cream and gold. For a moment he was humble and helpless before all the beauty that he had married. The satin-soft, delicate beauty, like the beauty of a fresh gardenia laid in a box of cotton wool.

"I ought to be shot for taking you," he said, with a shake of his head. "I had about as much right to marry you as a slave would have to the Queen of Sheba." He laughed but he meant it.

She looked down at the gingham apron she had put on before she began to pack her clothes, and wondered how many gingham aprons she would wear out before Pat was rich enough to afford a servant for her. . . . And then, as if the sight of the apron reminded her of them, she thought of her clothes in the scented closet at home on Montpelier road.

"It's just plain silly for me not to have them," she decided, and decided at the same instant to get them, by some hook or crook. (To Be Continued)

Did you ever watch an expert bowler swing into action? Note the grace and speed—and the confidence with which he sends his ball down the polished alley straight for the ten pins—and the spectators shout in unison, "A strike!"

That's "Loreco 88." On a frosty morning you touch the starter of your machine with full confidence, and "Loreco 88" responds immediately with a positive fire. No spitting and back-firing.

Loreco Motor Oil pours freely at zero temperature. On coldest mornings Loreco Motor Oil affords instant lubrication to all parts of your motor at the first revolution of the crankshaft.

It was a veritable ten-strike—the achievement of Loreco engineers in producing "Loreco 88," the ideal winter time gas. By providing an initial boiling point of only 88 degrees, this ideal winter time fuel ignites quickly as soon as sprayed through the carburetor, and yet all the reserve power of famous Loreco Gasoline is retained as the temperature of the motor increases.

Yet "Loreco 88" sells at no increase in price.

ARMY FLIGHTS HELP AVIATION DAVISON ASSERTS IN REPORT

Favors Trips Such As Last Year's "Good Will Tour"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Further flights such as the 20,000 mile air journey over South America participated in by ten army aviators last winter "should be encouraged" in the interest of commercial and military aviation development, Assistant Secretary of War Davison recommends in his annual report issued today.

The Good Will flight, the report asserts, "was a pioneering air voyage, and the information obtained will prove invaluable for commercial aeronautics and the War Department."

Valuable Flights
"I believe that flights such as the Pan-American flight should be encouraged. Their value is many times greater than the expense involved."

Davison complains, however, that the newspaper publicity given the trip "was very meager in the United States" and suggests that "closer attention should be given to the question of publicity" in the future.

The army air corps is still suffering from a shortage of commissioned personnel, the report continues, "by reason of the fact that fewer officers of other branches have applied for transfer to the air corps than expected, although the War Department has made every effort to encourage such action. Furthermore a substantial number of those officers who did apply for such transfer were unable to pass the physical examination and complete the course in flying training."

Housing Is Bad
"The type of personnel most valuable to the air corps is the graduates from the United States Military Academy or of technical civil institutions of learning. Efforts are being made to interest this type in electing the air corps in the former case and in qualifying for examination in the latter case."

Davison refers briefly to housing, declaring that on recent inspection trips "I found that much of the air corps personnel is housed in temporary structures built during the war with an anticipated life at the time of construction not in excess of five years. That time has long since passed, and these structures, providing as they do very poor quarters at best, have been maintained as well as possible by the expenditure of sums for repairs out of all proportion to the value of the buildings."

FEAR OF DRAFT LAW HANDICAPS CENSUS

BAGDAD, Dec. 2.—Fear of the passage of the proposed conscription law is interfering with the census which the Government of Iraq is trying unsuccessfully to take. Men under thirty who would be liable to service if the compulsory military service act were passed have to keep in virtual hiding, defying the census takers to try and find them. Anxious parents are concealing their sons from the eyes of the law.

The proposed military service law has nearly ruptured relations between the British Mandatory Authorities and the Iraq Government. Although it has been repeatedly declared in England that the proposed measure did not concern the British, it is well known that the Mandatory Power would like to see it established. King Feisal and the other native rulers are divided over the question.

IF YOUR STOMACH TORMENTS YOU

Do This for Quick Relief

A great deal of digestive suffering is due to excess stomach acid which causes heartburn, flatulence, stomach pain and other distressing symptoms. By taking "Pape's Diapepsin" after eating or when pain is felt you not only remove the cause of the trouble and instantly neutralize the harmful acid, but your digestive organs are soothed, healed and strengthened in a wonderful way, and normal healthy digestion results.

Because it is so quick, so safe and so sure in ending digestive troubles, millions recommend "Pape's Diapepsin." "Pape's Diapepsin" is unequalled as an indigestion remedy and food corrective, yet it costs only 60 cents a package at a druggist's.

If your stomach ever torments you get "Pape's Diapepsin" at once and recapture the pleasure of care-free, painless digestion. Adv.

DESTROYS RATS

Rats are easily destroyed by blowing calcium cyanide dust into their burrows. The "A" grade dust of this common material is recommended by H. L. Gul, assistant entomologist of the Ohio Experiment Station for destroying rats.

The dust may be blown into the burrows or other places occupied by the animals, by means of a small hand duster.

The quantity of dust to apply will depend upon the size of the burrow or other retreat. Under foundations an ounce or two, blown into each hole is usually sufficient. Under floors the dust should be applied at the rate of one pound for each 500 cubic feet of space.

The holes should be closed at once with soft earth to prevent the escape of the deadly hydrocyanic gas which is liberated from the calcium cyanide when it comes in contact with the moisture of the air in the burrows.

Most of the rats will be killed in their nests. Any that may escape are usually more or less overcome with the gas and are easily killed with a club.

Calcium cyanide is very poisonous, but is quite safe to handle if reasonable precautions are observed. It must not be allowed to get into open wounds and the gas given off must not be inhaled.

During the progress of fumigation under the floors of buildings, all domestic animals should be removed from the building above which should not be entered until after the rooms have been thoroughly ventilated.

Rats are more numerous this fall than usual. More detailed information for control programs may be obtained from county agents.

CAMPAIGN FOR BIGGER VOTE

Campaigns are already beginning to get out a bigger vote for presidential year. Citizens will be urged not merely to vote at the elections of next November, but at the equally important primaries that will nominate delegates next spring to the presidential conventions.

In opposition to these efforts, we have stubborn forces. The worst of these is the indifference of millions of citizens. As long as they have a job and enough to live on with decent comfort, they will not trouble their heads with politics.

There is a somewhat smaller but influential class of people also, who entertain very cynical views of politics. They say that these results are fixed up by bosses and rings and machines, and that it is impossible for the common run of voters to buck against these powerful influences. They argue that it is no use wasting time on political action, when the result will be unsatisfactory whichever way it goes.

All these indifferent and cynical people should realize that when they abstain from voting, they play into the hands of those who use politics for selfish purposes. If all the people who want good government would get out and vote, they would constitute such a powerful influence that the politicians would have to quit practices that are objectionable. They would be forced to nominate and elect high grade candidates, and political evils would largely vanish.

But as long as so many citizens stand aloof, and won't soil their hands, as some of them express it, with the dirty mess of politics, so long many political results will be unsatisfactory. Government is no doubt improving on the whole, as people gain in intelligence, but it would improve much faster if all the intelligent people would get out and vote.

DOCTRINE OF MIND MASTERY

Is the simple application of American common sense succeeding where a hundred mystic creeds and "isms" have failed—in making the ordinary man complete master of his own mind and capable of molding a successful career?

Many of the country's leading psychologists and educators are beginning to believe so as they center their attention on the work of J. Franklin Wright of Detroit, one-time railroad switchman. Wright, although still obscure to the general public, has within a few years built a following of tens of thousands who credit his elementary method of mental discipline with turning them from mediocre, and even criminal-minded, men and women into self-sufficient and successful individuals.

The seriousness with which Wright, who accepts no pay for his work, has come to be regarded by scientific minds and reputable agencies is evidenced in a current magazine article in which Albert Edward Wiggam, the scientist-author, after an investigation of Wright's activities, declares the Detroit man's program of character-building has met with "a most astounding success."

"Wright has no new psychological discovery, no patent will-power device by which you can lift yourself by your psychological bootstraps. His whole method is in teaching people how to think right thoughts instead of wrong ones," says Mr. Wiggam. "He appeals chiefly to your reason and shows you why it pays to be good."

The effectiveness of Wright's methods are shown, Mr. Wiggam cites, by the fact that his organization, "The Pathfinders of America," now has seven trained teachers instilling his methods of habit-formation in the thousands of Detroit school children with the sanction of school authorities. Similar work is being carried on in Cleveland schools and has been begun among 4,000 New York school children.

Wright found that if he was to be what he wanted to be he must build up sound reasons in the directions of the right desire. He saw that thinking of the right thing at the right time is the chief solution of habit formation.

The Way of the World

INDIAN RUNNERS

Bellamy says he saw six Indians run a ten-mile race and not one of them was under 55 years of age. He adds that the real Navajo test of a 14-year-old boy is his ability to run three days and three nights without rest.

Nobody can persuade you that it is necessary for you to be a marathon runner to be happy or to prosper.

More backyards and front porches, however, where the whole family can enjoy the fresh air will strengthen the nation.

A CURB ON THE TONGUE

The next time an unkind thought arises out of the heart and an unkind word to the lips, may we not remember the line from "Julius Caesar" which goes like this: "What private griefs they have alas! I know not." And stopping a little longer in the kingdom of poetry may we call on Tennyson who sang: "Never morning wore to evening but some heart did break."

The constant inability to gauge the intimate life of another ought to make us very careful.

LET'S BE LENIENT

It has been said that at twenty years of age the will reigns; at thirty, the wit; and at forty, the judgment. Not true. We who have passed forty know how complicated life's problems often are. We know how frequently judgment does not prevail with us—but rather will and desire. That knowledge ought to make us tolerant of youth. Many of us who have lived twice as many years as the youngsters know how badly we have done. That ought to make us both thoughtful and considerate when we lay down our lessons.

New Yorker

By

Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The intelligentsia, as some wag has nicknamed them, have a game with which to while away the long time between drinks at parties of an evening. For some months Judge has paid $5 apiece for this word game and some of them are cropping up nightly as original which originally appeared in Judge. Walter Winchell, ringmaster of the Graphic, reports some of these that I reported in this column last February; but then the game is only now becoming epidemic and something of a plague.

One of the earliest, reported by your correspondent last February, was Marc Connelley's, "I can make a sentence with the word Machiavelli." The Machiavelli fine suit for $25.

Came then sentences with the words Winchell, Turin, congeal, Listerine, Addison Mizner, etc., etc., as "Winchell we three meet again?" "Is there a Doc Turin in the audience?" "Jack congeal went up the hill?" "Listerine while I tell you of the Spaniard that blasted my life!" "I knew she was a good girl as soon Addison Mizner."

The comparatively new slang word, "racket," meaning a method of supplementing one's income by some enterprise outside of one's job, has given away to another word "dodge" when the "racket" is slightly shady in character.

There are, of course, respectable and legitimate "rackets." The head-waiter of a restaurant may have a "racket" by being a partner in a cloak-room concession or in a shooting-gallery or a ticket-agency. A "dodge," however, is a side income from some shonky business.

"Dodge," of course, is an old slang word revived. It was popular in the country during the Civil War and afterward. It was a favorite word with Dickens.

On the New York, New Haven and Hartford line, on which I commute, the conductors are remarkably speedy in collecting and punching tickets. The other day a young woman sat beside me in a train going to Mamaroneck. The conductor punched our tickets at 125th street. Later, after we left the New Rochelle station, the conductor appeared and asked my seat companion if her ticket was good only to New Rochelle. Greatly embarrassed, she admitted it was, and paid her fare to Rye, three stations away. These trainmen appear casual about their duties, but it will be a cagey passenger who succeeds in pulling a fast one on them.

The shirker who annoys me most is the one who gets into a revolving door just before or behind me and doesn't do his share of the pushing.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

Irish Observations

SOUTHERN IRELAND, especially County Kerry, as we hasten along toward the lakes of Killarney, is surprisingly similar to the more rugged, less settled sections of Connecticut.

It had never occurred to me that Ireland would turn out to be so mountainous. The hills and stone walls suggest New England, but the unique feature here is the small fields, each one bounded by a stone fence. On a distant hillside, the effect is of shadowy subdivisions almost as irregular and unsystematic as the lines in the palm of your hand.

Many of these stone walls have been standing so many hundreds of years that they are as green as golf bunkers. Little blades of grass must have taken root in the crevices, withered, and helped to make soil for more numerous blades of grass and other growth, until the walls have gradually become covered with solid turf. No wonder it's an ideal sporting country. As these walls are low, and wire fences rarely occur, one may ride to the hounds in almost any direction.

Fields of grazing land are so much more numerous than those in crops that a sportsman on horseback could easily avoid tramping down a farmer's grain.

It's easy to see how the Irish form the habit of taking interest in politics. Since this is a pastoral rather than an agricultural country, men set forth in the morning to watch their sheep or cattle rather than to till the soil. Groups of men keeping tabs on various flocks or herds, can get together and pass the time in conversation. What could be more natural than for them to talk politics?

We just stopped to talk with an old chap, aged about 90, who said his name is Duncreve. I misheard him at first and asked: "You say it is Duncreve?" "Duncreve" was his brief reply, with a sharp, rising accent. Instead of repeating his whole name, he preferred to save his breath by giving me only the syllable I had wrong.

How to Achieve Beauty

BY MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

Protecting Your Hands Against Winter Roughness and Redness

Hands that preside at a coffee urn, that play the piano or violin, or even that help a charming woman to express her thoughts and personality, should be milk-white and as soft as silk.

The winter months demand more of hands than any other time of year, for these are the height of the social season. Tennis courts and golf links are not so demanding.

Yet it is one of the eternal paradoxes that no other season will make hands look worse than winter does if they are not properly cared-for. Winds and cold chaps, roughen and redden them. Artificial heat dries them out. They need frequent washing, and if a bit of dampness remains when you go out into the cold, they are rough and sore in no time. Many women suffer from chilblains which, to say nothing of their painfulness, make the hands stiff and blotched with red or purple. To prevent them, put your hands in cold water as soon as you come in out of the cold. Cocoa butter or a good cream are excellent for overcoming them.

To restore whiteness and softness to weather-hardened hands, massage them two or three times a day with a softening hand cream. Before going to bed at night, rub anti-wrinkle cream into them and then put on gloves, from which the fingers have been cut, to prevent soiling the bed clothes.

Always after you wash your hands, rub a little hand lotion on them. A few drops of glycerine is excellent for many women, although it is irritating to the skin of some. I always get the best results by rubbing in a small amount of face cream that is made by a pasteurized process. Put this on while your hands are still wet, then dry them. You will find that it leaves them very soft and white and serves as an excellent protection against chapping.

Hands need so little care to keep them attractive that there is really no excuse for any woman to leave them unlovely. My next talk on winter beauty will take up the subject. "Counteract the Complexion Ravages of Artificial Heat."

Anti-Scurvy Food

A young mother wants to know if it would be safe to give her baby, two months old, a teaspoonful of orange juice once a day. Some of her friends tell her it will give the baby a shock and might kill it! Still others tell her it is fine for its stomach.

Answer—Your friends who tell you orange juice is fine for the baby's stomach are the right ones. Young mother, although it isn't for its immediate effect on the stomach that we give it. It is given to prevent scurvy. It is usually customary to begin the orange juice at about three months, but I can assure you it is not going to kill your baby, nor shock it, if you give it at two months.

The secret of giving a baby any new food is to give it in very tiny amounts first and gradually increase so that its little digestive system has time to develop the digestive ferments and juices. If mothers cannot get orange juice for some reason, then tomato juice—canned or raw—or cabbage or turnip juice can be given. In the case of cabbage and turnips, these should be ground very fine and the pulp squeezed in a piece of clean cloth, with very clean hands or a press. Beginning as early as at two or three months, it would be wise to begin with not over a quarter of a teaspoonful well diluted with water, and increase a quarter of a teaspoonful every day until two or four tablespoons are given. It can be given between feedings, first and then later just before a feeding, if more convenient.

Even nursing babies should have young mother, so please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for our list of books for mothers and guardians. This list contains books on children's care in general, on food—some anti-scurvy juice. You need a good textbook on feeding your baby, on sex instruction and exercise.

NOTE: "Please send ten cents in COIN and fully self-addressed stamped envelope with orders for pamphlets on diet and health."

cannot do it yourself, Mrs. J. While artificial feeding of babies has improved very remarkably in late years, no artificial food can be equal to mother's milk. (We had a professor who used to insist upon our saying "woman's milk" because we must remember that a cow is also a mother!)

Premature babies, or babies feeble for other reasons, almost always do better with a wet nurse than with almost any artificial food. If the wet nurse is healthy, it matters not what her color, creed, nationality, or disposition is, for no mental, moral or physical characteristics are transmitted to the milk. You will realize this when you realize how many children are brought up on cow's or goat's milk!

I will have to speak again about the health of the wet nurse. Of course, she must be free from syphilis, tuberculosis or other chronic diseases, so a careful check-up by a competent physician is necessary. And I must also speak of something that is not usually thought of; that is, it is equally important to know that the baby hasn't syphilis, so that the nurse's health will be protected.

It isn't necessary that the foster baby and the nurse's baby be of the same age, for the composition of human milk is essentially the same throughout the period of nursing.

Quite a few large cities now have human milk dairies where one can buy the human milk, and quite a new vocation has opened up for nursing mothers who are needy. This milk is carefully pumped under sterile conditions, then is cooled and pasteurized. Naturally, it is quite a bit more expensive than cow's milk.

Winter is the pie season. In summer it is generally too warm for such a heavy dessert unless a very light meal be planned. Apple pie is a great favorite, then pumpkin, mince, cranberry, etc., with any number of "open faced" pies with meringue on top, keep mother busy and the family happy. I don't recommend pie for dessert where there are children. Milk puddings, ice cream and gelatine concoctions are better for little folks, but an occasional pie, especially if eaten in the middle of the day, would scarcely harm the older school children. Enough pie crust may be made at one time to make two or three pies, enough being used for one and the rest put in the refrigerator or other cool place, to be made up as needed.

Today's Recipes

Pumpkin Pie Substitute—Peel sweet potatoes and boil till done, mash with potato masher, measure out one and one-fourth cup mashed sweet potato, one-fourth cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, melted, one-half teaspoon each cinnamon and allspice, one-eighth teaspoon each cloves and nutmeg, one-half teaspoon salt, one egg, slightly beaten, one tablespoon flour, one cup sweet milk. Mix in order given, pour into pie tin lined with pastry and sprinkle lightly with cinnamon. Bake in moderate oven. Makes one pie.

Baked Halibut—To prepare the fish, wash the slices as they come from the market and dry carefully. Lay them in a buttered baking dish. Season one-half cup milk with salt and paprika, and pour over the fish. Bake in a moderate oven for half an hour, basting occasionally. Then place on a hot platter without breaking the fillets.

Cheese Sauce—One cup of cream sauce, made with one tablespoon each of flour and butter and one cup of milk. Stir until smooth. Cook for two minutes, and then add one snap-py cheese broken in pieces. Keep it not until the cheese has melted, but do not let it cook. A double boiler is the safest container in preparing this sauce.

Potato Puff—Two cups mashed potatoes, two tablespoons melted butter, two eggs, one-half cup scalded milk, salt to taste. Stir the melted butter into the potatoes, beat until creamy; add eggs beaten very light and then the milk and seasonings. Bake in a deep but-tered dish in a quick oven for about twenty minutes, or until nicely browned.

Escalloped Potatoes—Take four medium sized white potatoes, peel, slice very thin and place in cold water for a short time. Drain and place a layer in the bottom of a baking dish. Sprinkle with flour and grated cheese and continue until potatoes are used. In the last layer of potatoes lay thin slices of bacon; sprinkle with flour, salt and pepper. Pour on enough milk to about cover the potatoes, then put in moderate oven for about one hour.

Mock Cherry Pie—One cup cranberries, one-half cup seeded raisins, one cup boiling water, one cup sugar, one tablespoon flour, one teaspoon vanilla. Boil a few minutes. Bake between two crusts.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Unless President Coolidge comes out flatfooted Dec. 5, against more than eight years for any one man in the White House, Washington will make up its mind that he's willing to be drafted next year.

On Dec. 5 congress will meet. The president's message will be read.

It will be an appropriate time and place for him to go officially on record, and clear up every bit of doubt and uncertainty, if he wants to. If he fails to do it, it will generally be assumed that he doesn't want to.

It doesn't settle the argument to say that the president announced he doesn't "choose" to run again, and that that ends it, because it doesn't necessarily end it, by any means.

Cal must know he left a lot of people wondering if he mightn't run anyway, even though he doesn't "choose"—if drafted.

Suppose a guest at your house declines any more turkey; and you urge him to take some more; and he sidesteps a repetition of his original refusal—aren't you justified in suspecting that he'll eat another helping, if it's forced on him?

On the theory that the President will have nothing further to say about another term, unless he has to, a plot is brewing to make him say something, one way or the other, whether or not he "chooses."

It won't work, however. Senator LaFollette will introduce a measure early in the coming session, looking toward a constitutional amendment limiting any president to two full terms (President Coolidge, of course if renominated and re-elected, will have two and a fraction).

The scheme's to get this proposition through congress and up to Cal, to sign or veto—fish or cut bait, so to speak.

Its weakness is that congress won't pass it. The senate probably will—but this house of representatives, never—that is, if it will embarrass President Coolidge. Still, it may make an annoying amount of talk.

If any drafting's to be done, the talk can't be helped.

If, on the other hand, the president positively doesn't mean to run again, in 1928, under any circumstances, he can take the pep out of the whole program, by declaring explicitly that he's opposed, in principle, to a president's re-election more than just once—regardless of the length of his initial tenure, or of the fashion in which he got in the first time.

A paragraph like this, in the presidential message, would end all suggestions of drafting at once, but if that's the president's meaning, why not?

Congress could go ahead then and pass the LaFollette measure overwhelmingly as it liked—there'd be no sting in it for President Coolidge. On the contrary, it would be an endorsement of his position, on perhaps the most important question raised in American history since George Washington gave the country to understand he didn't want to be king.

Indeed, it would hardly be necessary for congress to act—the precedent would be about binding enough.

In case this is what the president does, it would be most unfair to surmise that the prospect of congressional action—or talk—influenced him.

For all anybody knows, he's had it in mind all along.

Ransacking scribbles on the back of envelopes, from pockets of his old clothes, historians of 2027 may find out more about it than we know now.

"Rastus, your dog seems to be in pain."

"No, suh—he ain't in pain; he's just lazy."

"But he must be suffering or he wouldn't howl like that."

"Jes' plumb lazy; jes' laziness; representatives, never—that is, if it

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

What Can the Poor Girl Do?

What's to be done if a girl is in love—or thinks she is—with a boy and he doesn't know where she is and so cannot make love to her if he wants to?

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am in great distress and am writing for help. Before I went away on a visit this summer I was traveling around with a number of boy friends. I used to enjoy going out with them, but since I came home I am always making excuses so as not to accept their dates. I care only for girl friends' company. I met a young man whom I think a lot of. I have never been in love, but do you think this is my trouble now? Would you advise me to write to him? He doesn't know where I live."

"IN DISTRESS."

Gracious yes, write to him and tell him where you live. He may be suffering, even as you are, and it is up to you to let him know where he may find you. You may not be in love, but it does look as if you were a bit interested in this boy, doesn't it?

And now come a couple of "babies in the woods" who want to know whether they should get married.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 17 and have been going with a certain party for about one year, he being 18. We are greatly in love with each other and understand each other quite well. We have been thinking of getting married at Christmas. Would you suggest waiting when we know we will be happy right now?"

"BRIGHT EYES."

I think you are both very young, my dear. Few boys of 18 are financially able to support a wife, and few young persons of your age are stable enough in their affections to be sure they have met their right mates. What do your parents say?

Always glad to welcome newcomers to our circle, even when they want something I can't supply.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I'm a new member to your circle and hope I am welcome. I'm looking for a real pal. I am 21 and enjoy all kinds of sports, such as hiking, dancing, skating, etc. Have gone about with quite a few fellows, but have not met one I could call a real pal. Are all the fellows the same? Do they all believe the only way to enjoy themselves is by petting?"

REAL PAL.

If you've been reading the columns, Real Pal, you know that there are many letters from boys who prefer to be "real pals" instead of petters. I am sure there are some in town, and I am afraid it will be up to you to find them.

Safe for the Serpents' Long Sleep

"Say, Two-Legs, you never saw such a lot of happy Serpents in all your life," went on Rattler. "Those who had writhe with cold and discouragement now wriggle with joy, and 'twas I who had wrought the change." Rattler reared his head, quite as proud of himself now in the telling of the tale as he had been that morning in autumn so long ago. Peter was as interested as any boy could be.

"What did those neighbors say to your plan?" asked he.

"Not much. Serpents aren't a talkative lot, you know. But their actions spoke louder than words. They elected me pathfinder, and so, at their head, I crawled off to lead the way to the Cave. But 'twas far, far away, farther than I thought, and when we reached the top of the cliff it was almost night."

"It is Serpent nature to be suspicious and discontented. So those serpents acted perfectly natural."

at last I reached the ledge, with front door of the cave.

"Come on, comrades," cried I. "Hold fast to the rock; crawl slow and soon you'll reach the goal. I'm going inside to make room for you on the ledge!"

"Then, good scout that I was, I crawled inside the deep, black hole, poked my nose into every nook and corner, and make quite sure that the cave was safe for the Serpents' long sleep."

"I know a cave so steep that no one could get to us, not even a bear."

EX-SERVICE MEN HAVE UNTIL JANUARY 1 TO COLLECT BONUS

All ex-service men or women, of the army, navy or marine corps, who have not collected their share of the honorarium voted them by congress three years ago, or the veto of President Coolidge, must go so before January 1, 1928.

Of the 5,500,000 ex-service men entitled to the World War Adjusted Compensation, more than 500,000 have failed to make application for the bonus and 40,000 others, whose applications were filed incorrectly, failed to return corrected applications when they were returned to them.

These procrastinators who wish to make application may do so this way:

- 1.—Obtain from the nearest post-office or from Miss Yeola Purdom, executive secretary, American Red Cross, at the chapter office in the Court House, an application blank;
- 2.—Read the instruction leaflet, which shows that discharge papers must accompany application blanks and that if discharge papers are lost, memory may serve;
- 3.—Fill out the blank legibly, honestly, correctly, not forgetting to furnish fingerprints and two signatures;
- 4.—Address the envelope which comes with the blank to that branch of the service to which you were last assigned—to the Adjutant General, Bureau of Navigation or Marine Corps, all in Washington, D. C.

CHILD STRUCK BY AUTO IS UNHURT

Edwin Mercer, five-year-old son of John Mercer, W. Main St., was knocked down but not injured by an auto driven by Robert McClain, Upper Bellbrook Pike, while the child was playing with companions on W. Second St. at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, it was reported to police.

McClain, traveling west, had practically stopped his car to avoid hitting another boy and had started the machine again when the Mercer boy darted in front of the auto. The car was moving slowly.

The Mercer boy was taken home. Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, investigated, and notified Dr. Frank M. Chambliss, who examined the boy and pronounced him free from even a scratch.

RASH FROM HEAD TO FOOT

Burned and Itched Badly. Cuticura Healed.

"I had a rash break out all over me from head to foot. It burned and itched so badly at night that I could not sleep and used to sit up and scratch. I could not get any rest, and lost weight.

"I tried different remedies but nothing helped me. I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. After using it I noticed the rash disappearing so purchased more and in a short time I was completely healed." (Signed) Mrs. F. X. Schillen, Jr., 513 17th Ave. No., Minneapolis, Minn.

The Theater

Charles Brackett, critic for "The New Yorker," admitted "Coquette" by George Abbott and Ann Preston Bridges at the Maxine Elliott, rendered him speechless and then proceeded to write two columns about the piece in the last issue.

"Coquette," according to Brackett, is the story of a lovely, gay, light-minded girl upon whom life, which she's always found beautiful and carressing, suddenly falls.

"John," a sensitive and beautiful study of the character of John the Baptist, is at the Klaw Theater. Critics declare it to be moving, even to the most blasé, and Jacob Ben-Ami is said to play the prophet with brilliance and Constance Collier is splendid as Herodias.

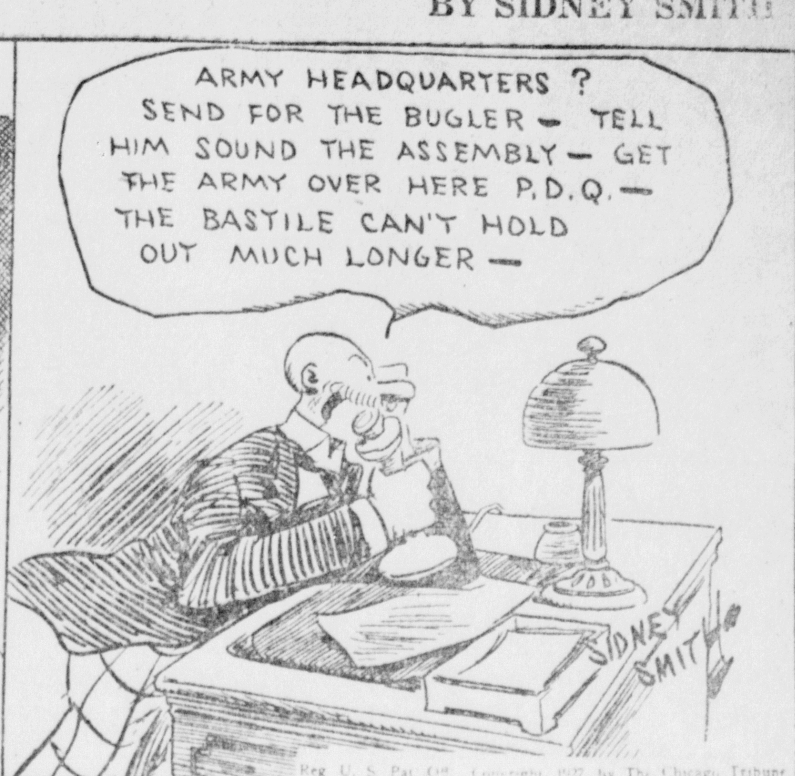

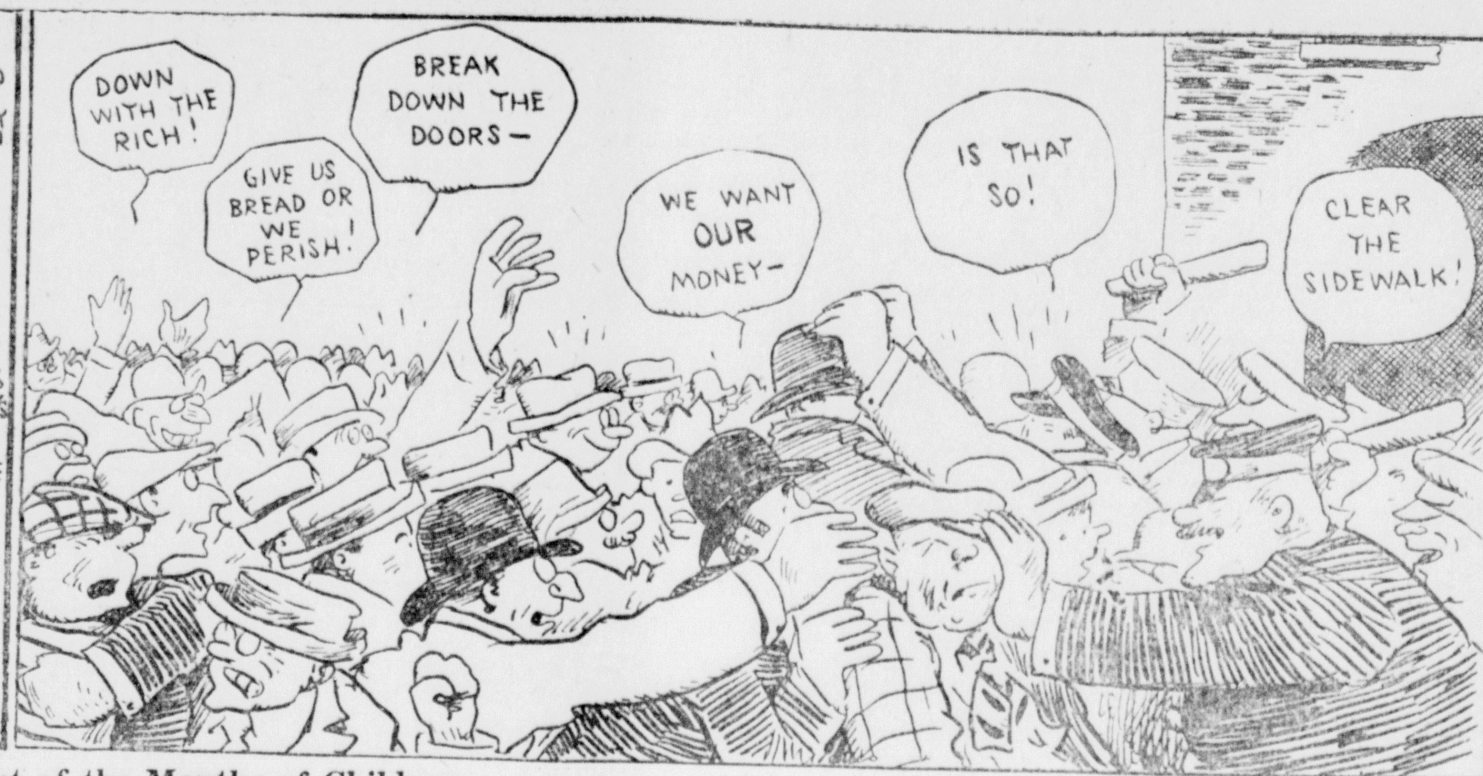

Ridicule of motion pictures of undergraduates' college life has developed into a petition signed by more than one-tenth of the Princeton student body and presented to the Princeton theater owners, suggesting that they show true dramatizations of the American college or no college pictures at all. The hackneyed Alma Mater pictures are greeted with loud boos and guttural when ever they appear on Princeton screens.

A law suit involving the late Peter the Great, canine film actor, and $250,000 is underway in Los Angeles. The owners of the dog, Charles B. Dreyer and Edward M. Faust, are suing Fred Cyracks, who they allege, killed the dog.

Upon her return from Europe, Mae Murray has decided to grace the stage for a while. Among other features, she will introduce the Merry Widow Waltz in modern form, through which she has won fame on the screen.

A Nickel Buys a Cool Sweet Cigar Made From Fragrant Ripe Tobacco. News for Particular Smokers

Really satisfying smokes at a nickel each! You've probably had hard luck trying to find a genuinely good cigar at five cents. You may say, "There's no such animal." If you'll only try your luck once again, you're going to win!

Don't take our word for it that Havana Ribbon is a cigar that will amaze you. Just dig up a solitary nickel and shove it across the counter in your favorite cigar store. Say "Havana Ribbon" and put a match to a smoke that says "quality" from the first puff.

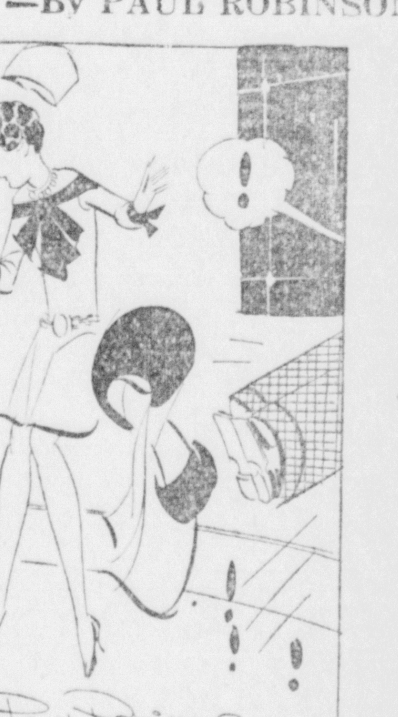

Havana Ribbon sold at more than a nickel for years. Smokers liked it and bought it by the million. We sold so many that we could bring down the price and improve the cigar. Today we don't think you can buy anything approaching Havana Ribbon for five cents. It costs only a nickel to find out for yourself.

DIVORCE SOUGHT BY WOMAN IN PETITION

Divorce and a reasonable allowance for her separate maintenance are sought in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Maude I. George, Wright Memorial Park, Greene County, against Edward M. George, Wright Memorial Park.

They were married September 7, 1906 at Ashland, Wis. No children were born of the union.

Plaintiff charges gross neglect of duty, in that during the past eighteen months, the defendant's attitude toward her has been one of utter indifference, without any regard as to her mental and physical well being.

His treatment of her has been such as to cause her untold suffer-

SOCIOLOGIST SAYS RUTH SNYDER COULD BE SPARED DEATH

creed Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, her lover, must die for the murder of Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert Snyder.

Only Governor Al Smith can save them by commuting their sentences.

Should capital punishment be abolished and the plan propounded by Dr. Adler adopted, criminals would be segregated into various classes—the imbeciles and other defectives, first offenders and adult prisoners would be separated. Then they would be subjected to discipline.

Urges Proper Discipline

"Those who have not learned to control their impulses, especially the sudden passionate impulses that lead to the injury of others, must learn to control them. The right discipline has this effect," Dr. Adler declares.

"Again, those who commit depredations on the property of others, whose object is to gain the rewards of labor without labor, must be taught industry, the acquisition of property by the expenditure of effort, as is attempted by introducing instruction in trades and crafts in the best prison systems. "Segregation from society is necessary. But the prison is not a hotel, it is not a hospital. The prisoner is not a patient who is to be healed of his sickness. He has committed an act or acts which prove that he needs to be re-educated.

ing, which undermined her health to a point where it was necessary to place herself under the care of a physician, the petition charges. Plaintiff asserts she is unable to continue to live with her husband by reason of her mental and physical condition.

"The prison is a school for the re-education of its wards. As a person who has had locomotor ataxia needs to be 're-educated' physically, so a person who has perpetrated the acts called crime needs to be morally re-educated; that is, he needs to be taught to acquire the control of impulse and habits of application, and the sense of social solidarity.

Favors Indeterminate Sentences

"Every sentence should be indeterminate. Any prisoner should remain segregated until impartial experts certify that he has been re-educated sufficiently to go back to society, certify that he is fit to graduate from the school of re-education."

Should all efforts fail to obtain clemency from Governor Smith, Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray enter the death chamber on the day of the execution. She must pass his cell on the way to the chair. Execution is scheduled for week of January 9.

This will be the first time they have seen each other since the day sentence was passed upon them.

Darrow Comments

Ruth and Henry no longer are lovers—the flame of their passion has died.

No hope for the lives of these two is held by Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer, who saved Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb from the gallows. In an interview he said:

"I think Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray will be electrocuted. The circumstances surrounding the case, the publicity, and the public reaction at the time of the crime seem to assure that."

This Leadership exclusive in High-Compression Performance

The almost universal trend to the high-compression motor only serves to emphasize the exclusive method, advantages and results achieved by the Hudson Super-Six in this development.

While conventional types depend upon special, costlier fuels to minimize roughness, the Hudson design uses any gasoline, delivering the extra power with the elastic smoothness of a steam engine.

Combined with the Super-Six principle this new invention makes Hudson the most powerful and economical car per pound weight in the world.

The extraordinary speed of Hudson getaway is but a single expression of the brilliant activity of the New Hudson Super-Six, which is carried on to every phase of performance. You see it in the rapidity with which it rolls into high speed; the effortless ease with which it sustains fast going; the long, reliable service through which it maintains its smooth and brilliant performance.

A single ride will explain why this has been the most enthusiastically accepted Hudson ever built.

INSULL DENOUNCED WARMLY BY SENATOR REED BEFORE BOARD

Missourian Attacks Secretary Mellon In Chicago Talk

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—The political pot was boiling here today following a vitriolic speech delivered by Senator James A. Reed of Missouri before the Cook County Real Estate Board. The high light of the addresses was Senator Reed's denunciation of Samuel Insull for his alleged aid in electing Frank L. Smith as senator from Illinois.

Avoiding the mention of Mr. Insull by name, the fiery Missourian referred to him as "the head of the public service corporations."

Senator Reed also attacked Secretary of the Treasury Andrew Mellon for his financial assistance in Pennsylvania elections and assailed the principals in the Teapot Dome disclosures. Centering his fire on Smith and Insull, Senator Reed said:

"After he is seated in the senate, whom will Smith represent? Did the shrewd investor in public franchises make a mistake when he invested in a United States senator? Is the man who accepted this stupendous sum of money free to consider only the interests of the Republic?"

Is there anything sinister in this effort to elect a member to the senate when it is paralleled by a nationwide movement to consolidate many if not all public service corporations under one management, and that management in the hands and subject to the control of the genial gentleman who produced the necessary thousands of dollars to promote the nomination and election of Mr. Smith of Illinois?"

Co-incidental with Senator Reed's speech, it was learned that Mr. Insull has made a written offer to appear before the slush fund committee and answer the questions he refused last winter. It is believed in some quarters this move will forestall the threatened prosecution on the contempt charges.

Turning his guns upon Secretary Mellon, Senator Reed declared that Mellon put up $25,000 to the election fund of Senator George Wharton Pepper.

"It remained, however, for the secretary of the treasury, from his position in the cabinet, to give to the picture the final touch of sanctity when with impious insolence he declared the gathering of the slush fund to have been as justifiable as collecting money for the church of God," Senator Reed added.

Discussing the Teapot Dome case and the nomination and election of President Harding, Reed said he was "convinced that not one-half the story of the loot of the oil lands had been told."

COLD SPELL HALTS MAHONING FLOODS

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 2.—The rise in the Mahoning River was expected to be halted today by the continued cold weather. The river last night was higher than at any time since the 1913 flood.

The Bessemer plant of the Republic Iron and Steel company, employing 1,000 men, shut down last night because the plant was unable to get hot metal from the Hazelton plan on account of the railroad tracks being covered by the high waters.

A mother and baby stranded in an automobile on the Warren-Delaware Road, when the motor stalled, were rescued by deputy sheriffs.

At Warren last night, police and firemen worked frantically to save the city from a flood, as a lake of water formed on the north side. Rafts were used to rescue several persons who had been marooned by the rising waters.

BEACH WILL TESTIFY IN OWN DEFENSE

MURDER DEFENDANT ARGUED WITH SLAIN MAN SAYS ATTORNEY

Death Of Mother Of Juror May Halt Lill- iendahl Case

MAYS LANDING, N. J., Dec. 2.—Willis Beach, on trial with Mrs. Margaret Lill-iendahl for the murder of her husband, had a violent quarrel with the slain man nearly a year ago, it was stated in court today in the opening defense statement.

Edison Hedges, Beach's counsel, told the jury that his client called Dr. Lill-iendahl a "damn fool," and that the doctor retaliated with the same characterization. Hedges added, however, that the two men later made up their differences and became better friends than ever.

Beach was to face a jury and deny he killed Dr. Lill-iendahl today.

With the state's case completed and Justice Luther H. Campbell pushing every point in an effort to force a speedy conclusion of the trial, the possibility that death may take a hand to halt the introduction of testimony was indicated as court opened.

The mother of Mrs. Grace Wingate, juror No. 2, is critically ill and death is a matter of hours, it was learned. George W. Wingate, the juror's husband, and cashier of the Union National Bank, Atlanta, City, came here to make every effort to obtain his wife's release so she may be with her mother.

He asserted that both prosecution and defense counsel were told that Mrs. Wingate's mother was seriously ill, but nevertheless she had been forced to serve. If death does intervene, it is likely that court will be adjourned and Mrs. Wingate excused under guard of a deputy to attend the funeral.

A bed-ridden witness, Mrs. Lillian N. Tozer of Cloverdale, N. J., is to testify for the defense. Her testimony is expected to establish an alibi for Beach, who insists he was not at the murder scene when Dr. Lill-iendahl was slain on the morning of September 15.

Mrs. Tozer has been an invalid for several weeks. She may be carried into court on a stretcher, as was Jane Gibson in the Hall-Mills trial.

There will be about thirty witnesses for Beach and sixty-three more for Mrs. Lill-iendahl, who also will take the stand, it was announced by counsel. The defense will revive again the story of two Negro bandits whom the widow blamed for the murder of her elderly husband.

ELEVENTH BOMBING HARASSES POLICE

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Less than ten minutes after Chief of Police Michael Hughes had adjourned a meeting of his police captains, at which he told them the "gangster bombing disgrace" had gone far enough and must stop, a bomb burst eleven in the series that has marked the progress of the latest gang war, was exploded. It damaged a two-story building on W. Madison St., said to be headquarters for the Bertsch-Zuta-Skid mob faction.

The meeting of police captains had been called, it was understood, at the instigation of Mayor William Hale Thompson, who is said to be enraged over the widespread publicity given "Chicago's bloody gang war." The mayor characterized newspaper accounts as grossly exaggerated.

DAYTON MEN KILLED AT RAIL CROSSING

DAYTON, O., Dec. 2.—Funeral arrangements were being made today for the bodies of W. D. Kennett, 64, and L. H. Childress, 30, fatally hurt when the auto in which they were riding was hit by a southbound B. and O. passenger train here late Thursday. Their car was demolished.

Kennett was superintendent, and Childress an agent, of the Western and Southern Life Insurance company. It was more than an hour after the accident before their mangled bodies were identified.

DAN SHAY SUICIDES

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Dec. 2.—Dan Shay, former manager of the Kansas City club of the American Association is dead today. He died yesterday with a bullet imbedded in his brain. It is believed he shot himself. He was found unconscious in his room Wednesday night.

"I Could Win Now" Remus Asserts

CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 2.—"I could go to the jury now and win," George Remus, on trial for the murder of his wife Imogene, declared confidently today.

"I'll be acquitted. I'm sure of that. I've been watching this jury and I like the way they seem to react to the testimony."

"What splendid witnesses Remus has had."

"In the twenty-one years I have spent in the courtroom as a lawyer, I have never seen a better witness, or one who commanded more respect, who's intonation was so good, who's demeanor was so perfect as John T. Rogers, the St. Louis reporter who testified in my behalf on Wednesday. Wasn't he superb?"

"I'm a pessimist in law cases. It always has been my policy to regard the case from the other side. But I am not a pessimist in this, my own case. If Remus loses and has to go to the electric chair, he will go with a smile, but Remus is not going to lose."

Remus was asked why he has been so passive in court. Except yesterday, when he resented being referred to by an assistant prosecutor as "Remus the Rat," he has been strangely quiet for days. This demeanor is at variance with the theatrical Mr. Remus' natural inclinations.

"Well," Remus replied, "I couldn't question these witnesses about my sanity. It would be much better for Elston (his counsel) to do that. However, no one can convince Remus that he is now crazy."

And Remus, who has not once expressed regret over shooting his wife, smiled cryptically.

Remus said he thought John S. Berger was a fine defense witness. Too, Berger, a boyhood friend of Remus' is a wealthy Los Angeles promoter of expositions and world's fairs. He testified late yesterday he saw Mrs. Remus and Franklin L. Dodge, prohibition enforcement sleuth, in "almost nude attire" in a hotel room; that they had staged liquor parties in the Claypool Hotel in Indianapolis, and that Mrs. Remus referred to Dodge as her "heavy lover." Berger said Mrs. Remus told him she and Dodge were going to have Remus killed by St. Louis gangsters, get his vast fortune, and tour the country.

The state plans to grill Berger vigorously on cross-examination today.

SOCIOLOGIST SAYS RUTH SNYDER COULD BE "SAVED;" DARROW THINKS SLAYERS WILL DIE

By BONITA WITT
Staff Writer for Central Press and Gazette

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—What will society gain if Ruth Snyder is executed?

Dr. Felix Adler of New York, head of the Ethical Culture League and an ardent opponent of capital punishment, asks that question.

In his opinion, Ruth Snyder is a woman who became possessed of one idea and all her thoughts were directed toward its realization, without thought of consequence.

Compared With Napoleon
"Like Napoleon, who sacrificed thousands to gain his end, believing the means he used to reach his objective of no importance, Ruth Snyder was obsessed with the single idea of getting rid of her husband," Dr. Adler says. "She took no account of anything else—everything was subordinated to the one fixed idea."

"Were she to be educated by capable teachers, Mrs. Snyder perhaps would become a useful member of society."

A jury first, and now the New York court of appeals, have de-

TWO INJURED WHEN ELECTRIC CARS AT DELAWARE COLLIDE

Motorman And Woman Passenger Slightly Hurt

DELAWARE, Ohio, Dec. 2.—Two persons were injured early today when two interurban electric cars collided at Kingman Hill, three and a half miles south of here.

The cars which collided were northbound Columbus to Delaware and southbound local car. George Zigler, motorman on the local, and a woman passenger whose identity could not be learned, were injured but the extent of their injuries could not be determined immediately after the accident.

SIX INJURED WHEN TRAIN STRIKES BUS

AKRON, O., Dec. 2.—Six persons today were reported injured from injuries suffered when a freight engine crashed into an N. O. P. and L. company cross-town bus at the South Street railroad crossing here last night. Several others were reported injured but were not treated at hospitals. John Harnusek, 49, watchman at the crossing, was most seriously injured. It is believed he attempted to warn the bus driver of the approaching engine and was caught in the crash.

SHIP ATTACKED

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Six Chinese sampans attacked the British steamship Slangtan sixteen miles below Ichang, killing the second engineer, the quartermaster and another member of the staff and making the captain a prisoner, said an admiralty communiqué this afternoon. The British gunboats Bee and Gnat are enroute for the scene of the outrage.

JURY ACQUITS BARTLETT OF GROCERY STORE ROBBERY HERE

Troy Bartlett, Clarksburg, W. Va., was exonerated of a charge of participating in the hold-up of The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. branch store, Main and West Sts., by a jury in Common Pleas Court, which returning a verdict late Thursday afternoon acquitting him of an indictment by the grand jury for robbery.

Receiving the case at the conclusion of a two-day trial, the jury deliberated one and one-half hours, reaching a verdict at 5:30 p. m.

Bartlett based his chief defense on an alibi that he stole an automobile in Jamestown prior to the time the hold-up took place, drove nearly to Washington, C. H., before abandoning the machine, and then slept in a barn all night.

The Clarksburg youth was released after the verdict was returned and intended to spend the night in Xenia before returning to his home in Clarksburg, accompanied by his father, Friday.

M'NARY-HAUGEN OPPONENTS PICKED FOR FARM COMMITTEE

Farm Bloc Members Alarmed By Plan To Seat Opponents—Retailatory Measure Plan Of Western Leaders

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Alarm spread through the ranks of the house farm bloc today when it was reported that an effort would be made to fill two vacancies on the agriculture committee with avowed opponents of the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill.

Rep. Elbert S. Brigham, (R) of Vermont and Rep. John D. Clark, (R) of New York were said to be the pair elected by opponents of the McNary-Haugen bill to succeed to committee places vacated by ex-Rep. Tinchin, (R) of Kansas and McLaughlin, (R) of Nebraska, neither of whom was re-elected.

The danger of the situation immediately became apparent to farm bloc members. A motion to substitute the Curtis-Crisp bill, which is akin to the farm aid plan of Sec. relator of Agriculture Jardine, failed by the margin of one vote in the committee last year.

Since Tinchin opposed the McNary-Haugen bill while McLaughlin favored it, their replacement by two avowed opponents of the measure apparently would prevent it from ever reaching the floor of the house.

Western members immediately began to discuss retaliatory measures. A proposal is already being advanced to demand a change in the rules of the house, to provide that a petition signed by 150 members will be sufficient to call any bill from committee. Under present rules such a petition must have signatures of 215 members.

Rep. Oldfield, (D) of Arkansas, minority whip, and Rep. Dickinson (R) of Iowa, unofficial leader of the farm bloc, have been asked to lead the movement.

The new but partially formulated "insurgent" movement in the lower branch is the direct outgrowth of the power manifested by New York and Pennsylvania delegations in the committee on committees.

These groups secured a recommendation to place Repeal-Estey, (R) of Pennsylvania, on the ways and means committee which handles tariff and tax matters, before he had become a member of the house. Farm bloc leaders fear they can exercise an equally powerful control of the agricultural committee.

Speaker Longworth has announced his opposition to Estey going on the ways and means committee and is said to have joined with other house leaders in an effort to persuade Tinchin to retire. Rep. Priest, (R) of Pennsylvania, chairman of the state delegation, declared however, that he saw no reason why the committee's action should be revoked.

POWER TRUST LOBBY PREPARES TO FIGHT ANTI-LEGISLATION

Pinchot Organization Says Lobby Moves For Own Interests

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—A super-lobby of the power trust has swooped down on Washington "to mould public opinion and control power legislation in the coming session of congress," the National Popular Government League charged today.

The league, which is actively supported by ex-Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, described the power interests' activities in a twelve-page brochure entitled, "Who's who in the super-power lobby."

"The principal objectives of this super-lobby are to kill the Boulder Canyon bill, deliver Muscle Shoals to the power combine, sidetrack resolution to investigate the power trust as proposed by Senator Walsh (D) of Montana, and to turn over an invaluable power site belonging to the Flathead Indians of Montana to the Montana Power Company without just compensation to its owners," said the league.

"There will be no doubt a half dozen lobbies of the power crowd. The one selected to lead the fight, and which is now in the limelight, is the joint committee of national utility associations."

The leaders of the joint committee, the league declared, are:

George B. Cortelyou, chairman, a member of President Roosevelt's cabinet, and now president of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York.

Philip H. Gadsden, vice chairman, connected with "The United Gas and Improvement Company of Philadelphia, which deals in utilities and, as every Pennsylvanian knows, in politics also. Stephen B. Davis, director, ex-assistant secretary and solicitor of the commerce department. The league said Davis in 1924 testified before the house irrigation committee "in favor of the Boulder Canyon Dam, a fact which should not be forgotten when he appears against it."

Josiah T. Newcomb, counsel. The league quoted Newcomb as having said last February that "I represent an investment of $7,000,000, 000, and we do not propose to let the government enter the power business at Boulder Canyon." The league credited Newcomb with having killed the Boulder Dam bill last session.

Selby, at the time of the accident, was trying to repair a punctured tire on a hillside just outside of Athens. A car, driven by H. L. Roush, of Columbus, skidded, hitting Selby. Roush was exonerated of all blame for the unfortunate accident.

MILLIONAIRE SHOE MANUFACTURER DIES

ATHENS, O., Dec. 2.—Death of George D. Selby, 81, multi-millionaire shoe manufacturer, of Portsmouth, occurred at the Athens Hospital here early today. Selby's skull was fractured in an auto accident near here on the night of November 23. Pneumonia set in, causing his death. His body will be taken to his late home in Portsmouth today.

ROYAL AIR FORCE BARRED FROM RACES

LONDON, Dec. 2.—Pilots of the Royal Air Force will not participate in future Schneider cup races or any other contests, it was indicated here today.

The air ministry was understood to be inclined to discontinue the practice because it is feared such participation by its members results in publicity and hero worship which is distasteful to the Royal Air Force as a whole and is not conducive to good discipline.

It was indicated, however, that the ministry will lend advice and possibly funds for future air contests in which British pilots participate. But the plan will have to be flown by civilian pilots.

FREEZING WEATHER ADDS TO SUFFERING OF FLOOD VICTIMS

Serious Conditions Along Streams in New York State

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 2.—With rain predicted for today, additional damage and hardship was feared in western New York, where floods caused by swollen streams have made many families homeless, inundated farm lands and crippled transportation.

With freezing weather predicted by the weather bureau, no relief was in sight for residents made temporarily homeless.

Several counties in southwestern New York state were the first to suffer, and flood conditions are now reported throughout the 175 miles from Syracuse to James town as the rivers spread over the Canisteo and Chautauque Valleys.

One death had been reported to day. Ephraim Head was trapped in his home by the first 16 inches of snow, and perished in the flames. Neighbors were unable to rescue him.

Canal traffic is at a standstill. Canal boats along the Mohawk Valley and in other localities have been unable to reach tidewater.

Damage in the Genesee Valley, where bridges have been swept away and highways are under water, runs into hundreds of thousands of dollars. At Geneva a land slide blocked the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad. Water rushing down the top of the Mt. Morris dam has flooded the valley below. Although the Hudson River has risen to nine feet above normal here at Albany, it is not believed that damage will be heavy in the eastern part of the state. At Winouki, Vt., an emergency bridge was swept away.

NEW FORD ATTRACTS VISITORS TO XENIA AGENCY RECEPTION

Crowds Learn About New Model But No Car Available

Xenia obtained its first full description of the new line of Ford automobiles Friday at a public reception held at the Bryant Motor Sales, Market and Green Sts., as part of the nationwide introduction of the new Ford models.

In thousands of communities all over the United States Friday this new line of modern priced autos was introduced to millions of people.

Doors of the local sales agency show room, opening promptly at 8 o'clock, found a large crowd of people waiting to be admitted. Hundreds of visitors inspected the display room, which was attractively decorated for the occasion.

Literature and pictures of the various models with price lists were distributed and attendees were on hand throughout the day to explain the new and interesting features of the car, which is expected to write a new chapter in automotive history.

The only thing lacking was an actual model of the new Ford. Officials of the establishment expect to have a model for purposes of display by Monday, which will be available for public inspection for three days.

Only a limited number of models are yet available and these were originally shipped to the larger centers of population. It is explained, Ford officials are certain a model will be on hand by Monday but announcements regarding the date of the exhibition will be made later.

It is also advised that the Model T Ford will not become obsolete at an early date because the company will continue to manufacture parts as long as any of the old cars remain in existence.

This policy was announced with first publication of plans for a radical change in the type of automobile to be produced in the Ford plants and it will be followed out officials say.

Production of the new cars now averages from sixty-five to seventy autos per day, while plans for speeding up the program to call for manufacturing 1,000 more units daily in January than is now averaged, are announced.

Henry Ford himself has said:

"The new Ford embodies the best results of our experience in making 15,000,000 automobiles. We consider it our most important contribution thus far to the progress of the motor industry, to the prosperity of the country, and to the daily welfare of millions of people."

LANGEL RETURNED FROM PEN TO CANTON

CANTON, Ohio, Dec. 2.—S. A. Langel, ex-chief of the Canton Police Department, granted a new trial by the appellate court, after being convicted of complicity in the Don Mellett murder, here over a year ago, and sentenced to life imprisonment in the state penitentiary, was back in the Stark County Jail today, having arrived here from Columbus.

Langel left Columbus at 5:10 p. m. Thursday, being brought to Canton via the Pennsylvania lines, by deputy sheriffs. The party reached Canton at 8:50 p. m.

Langel was in good spirits today and told jail attaches he was glad to get back to Canton. He was assigned the same cell which he occupied previous to his former trial.

Prosecutor Harter has already filed application to submit the Langel case for review, with the state supreme court. A hearing on the motion is expected to start on December 20.

TROOPS REBEL IN SOVIET REGIMENTS

BELGRADE, Dec. 2.—Open rebellion against the government has broken out among regiments of the Soviet southern army, according to the newspaper Vreme which today prints dispatches from Bucharest quoting unconfirmed but unanimous reports from Odessa.

The rebels are reported as consisting of five regiments of infantry led by General Potemkin, an aide of the deposed Soviet leader, Leon Trotsky.

GILES DEFINITELY POSTPONES FLIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 2.—Captain Frederick A. Giles, British airman, today announced that he had definitely postponed his proposed air trip to New Zealand until next spring. Giles has twice been turned back after encountering bad weather.

"Experienced aviators have told me," said Giles, "that it is not wise to attempt an ocean flight during the winter, and I am inclined to believe them."

TOUGH CONDUCTOR

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 2.—T. F. Warren, 50, Indianapolis, is in White Cross Hospital here today recovering from a gash on the right side of his face suffered yesterday according to police records, when he was kicked in the face by a conductor on a north side street car. According to police reports Warren pulled the emergency bell rope when the car failed to stop where he wished to alight. As he was getting off the conductor kicked him in the face, Warren told police.

CORONER HEARD AT GROUF DEATH TRIAL

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 2.—A bullet through the neck, severing the spinal cord, caused the death of Tony Popo, Mahoning County Coroner. Mr. Popo testified before the jury in Judge David G. Jenkins' court, in the trial of Harvey Becker, H. E. Miller and Curtis Jones, on manslaughter charges, in connection with the killing of Popo, North Jackson farm hand, October 21. The three men are the first of twelve including Squire Frank A. Eckis and Constable John Harris, to go on trial for the killing. The trial of the twelve jointly was broken up Tuesday when Harris became ill.

Most of Thursday was occupied in selecting a thirteenth juror, and taking the jury to the scene of the killing on the Joseph Schmidt farm in Milton Township.

Florence's room across the hall was in perfect order. Lily sat at her desk, looking at the letter from Mrs. France. "Did you see that?" she asked. "It's from Mrs. France. She says she's coming to see you. What a pity! She's just what you need. Or did Mrs. France go to it?"

"Jimmy, they must do nothing but work!" thought Lily. "Everybody in the house! I wonder if they expect ME to turn into a plow horse, too?" If they did they certainly were due for an eye opener, and no mistake about it!

Downstairs the telephone rang. Rushing down the steps, Lily wondered wildly if it could be her mother calling her—or her father. "Maybe they'll miss me so much that they'll let me take Pat there to live!"

But the voice on the other end of the wire was a voice she never had heard before—a woman's voice, high pitched and nasal. "Miss France?" it asked, and before Lily had time to say that she was Mrs. France Junior, it went on:

"The telephone line in the store is busy, so I just called to see if you could send me up some starch and bluing right away. This is Miss Trinker. I forgot to get them when I was in on Saturday night, what with hearing Pat's wedding an' all—Lily did not wait to hear the rest of 'Miss Trinker's' conversation. She handed up the receiver and flew back upstairs.

"What a place to live in—where grocery orders come over the phone!" she cried aloud to the walls of the room. "Oh, what have I done—what have I done to myself?" And she began to cry, plunging her face into her small hands. And the worst of it, she sobbed to herself, was that Pat didn't really love her, although she had given up everything to marry him.

If he really cared for her, would he have left her yesterday and gone over to those cheap common Jettersons' where Elizabeth Eric was sure to be? Would he have let her stay, locked up in the room all night, instead of banging the door down as she had hoped he would?

"Oh, no—no!" she wailed aloud. Suddenly she decided that she would not stay in the house any longer.

She dragged the gray bags from under the bed, and still crying and gasping, she began to throw all her things into them, helter-skelter. And all the time she was doing it, she was wondering what Pat would say—what he would think—when he came home at noon and found her gone.

She was so busy with her own thoughts that she did not hear the front door downstairs open and gently close. Quick, eager feet came running up the stairs, and Pat came into the room. In a second, his eyes took it in—the half-packed bags, the unmade bed, the tears on his bride's face.

Then he swept her into his arms, and she had her cry out with her face buried against his blue overalls that smelled of grease and gasoline and rubber—a most heavenly smell to Lily that morning.

"So!" he said, "you were going to run out on me, were you? Going to leave your old husband, and no mistake about it!"

With her lovely head against his breast, Lily nodded. "I'm the wrong wife for you, Pat!" she sobbed. "Your m-m-mother says I've got to clerk in the store, or else do the cooking—"

This was not the exact truth. But when Lily wanted to twist the truth to her own uses, she did it without even realizing what she was doing. She had had no brothers or sisters to teach her to play fair, as Pat had had. He believed in her, and his mouth hardened at the corners.

"Honey, you don't have to cook," he soothed her, holding her closer and closer, and punctuating his words with hard, swift kisses. "I'm paying our board here, and you don't have to do a lick of work but look after this room and send out the laundry! But I would like you to learn to cook, and Mother's offered to teach you. She's a marvelous cook."

Lily sighed. She didn't want to learn to cook. And in her own mind she knew she never was going to try to learn. There were lots of good restaurants, and there was instantaneous coffee that you could make by just pouring hot water over it—

She changed the subject. "And you left me yesterday to go over to Jettersons' to see that Ertz girl!" she sobbed softly. "You still like her."

"I do like her," admitted Pat, who was sometimes too honest for his own good. "But that's nothing. I'm in love with you, and you're the only woman in this world for me. Now get that into your cute little head, and stop acting like a baby!"

He kissed her again, and then he set to work to put the room to rights with the clumsy movements of a man. He unpacked the two bags, made the bed in some sort of fashion, and dusted the furniture with his pocket handkerchief.

And, sitting on the broad window sill, with the sun in her hair, Lily watched him do it. "I must learn to do these things, darling," she said idly, laying down the butter she had been using on her finger nails, long enough to light a cigarette. "Really I must."

Pat looked at her, colorful as a June rose in the sunshine. She was like some lovely figure, carved out of ivory and painted with the most delicate tints imaginable. A creature of rose and cream and gold. For a moment he was humble and helpless before all the beauty that he had married. The satin-soft, delicate beauty, like the beauty of a fresh gardenia laid in a box of cotton wool.

"I ought to be shot for taking you," he said, with a shake of his head. "I had about as much right to marry you as a slave would have to the Queen of Sheba." He laughed, but he meant it. Lily laughed, too. "That's the proper frame of mind for you to be in—and see that you stay that way," she told him, lightly, but she meant it, too! "The best way to hold a husband I reckon is to keep your foot on his neck! And I'm going to keep you under my heel from now on!"

But when he was gone, she became deadly serious again. "I'll never leave him," she thought, still tingling with the memory of his arms around her. "No matter how poor we are, I care for him too much—"

She looked down at the gingham apron she had put on before she began to pack her clothes, and wondered how many gingham aprons she would wear out before Pat was rich enough to afford a servant for her. . . . And then, as if the sight of the apron reminded her of them, she thought of her clothes in the scented closet at home on Montpelier road.

"It's just plain silly for me not to have them," she decided, and decided at the same instant to get them, by some hook or crook. (To Be Continued)

"LOOK FOR LORECO"

LORECO 88
THE IDEAL WINTER TIME GAS
At no increase in price!

Did you ever watch an expert bowler swing into action? Note the grace and speed—and the confidence with which he sends his ball down the polished alley straight for the ten pins—and the spectators shout in unison, "A strike!"

That's "Loreco 88." On a frosty morning you touch the starter of your machine with full confidence, and "Loreco 88" responds immediately with a positive fire. No spitting and back-firing.

Loreco Motor Oil pours freely at zero temperature. On cold mornings Loreco Motor Oil affords instant lubrication to all parts of your motor at the first revolution of the crankshaft.

It was a veritable ten-strike—the achievement of Loreco engineers in producing "Loreco 88," the ideal winter time gas. By providing an initial boiling point of only 88 degrees, this ideal winter time fuel ignites quickly as soon as sprayed through the carburetor, and yet all the reserve power of famous Loreco Gasoline is retained as the temperature of the motor increases.

Yet "Loreco 88" sells at no increase in price.

ARMY FLIGHTS HELP AVIATION DAVISON ASSERTS IN REPORT

Favors Trips Such As Last Year's "Good Will Tour"

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Further flights such as the 20,000 mile air journey over South America participated in by ten army airmen last winter "should be encouraged," in the interest of commercial and military aviation development, Assistant Secretary of War Davison asserts in his annual report issued today.

The Good Will flight, the report asserts, "was a pioneering air voyage, and the information obtained will prove invaluable for commercial aeronautics and the War Department."

Valuable Flights. "I believe that flights such as the Pan-American flight should be encouraged. Their value is many times greater than the expense involved."

Davison complains, however, that the newspaper publicity given the trip "was very meager in the United States" and suggests that "closer attention should be given to the question of publicity" in the future.

The army air corps is still suffering from a shortage of commissioned personnel, the report continues, "by reason of the fact that fewer officers of other branches have applied for transfer to the air corps than expected, although the War Department has made every effort to encourage such action. Furthermore a substantial number of those officers who did apply for such transfer were unable to pass the physical examination and complete the course in flying training."

Housing Is Bad. "The type of personnel most valuable to the air corps is the graduates from the United States Military Academy or of technical civil institutions of learning. Efforts are being made to interest this type in electing the air corps in the former case and in qualifying for examination in the latter case."

Davison refers briefly to housing, declaring that on recent inspection trips "I found that much of the air corps personnel is housed in temporary structures built during the war with an anticipated life at the time of construction not in excess of five years. That time has long since passed, and these structures, providing as they do very poor quarters at best, have been maintained as well as possible by the expenditure of sums for repairs out of all proportion to the value of the buildings."

FEAR OF DRAFT LAW HANDICAPS CENSUS

BAGDAD, Dec. 2.—Fear of the passage of the proposed conscription law is interfering with the census which the Government of Iraq is trying unsuccessfully to take. Men under thirty who would be liable to service if the compulsory military service act were passed have to keep in virtual hiding, defying the census takers to try and find them. Anxious parents are concealing their sons from the eyes of the law.

The proposed military service law has nearly ruptured relations between the British Mandatory Authorities and the Iraq Government. Although it has been repeatedly declared in England that the proposed measure did not concern the British, it is well known that the Mandatory Power would like to see it established. King Feisal and the other native rulers are divided over the question.

IF YOUR STOMACH TORMENTS YOU

Do This for Quick Relief

A great deal of digestive suffering is due to excess stomach acid, which causes heartburn, flatulence, stomach pain and other distressing symptoms. By taking "Pape's Diapepsin" after eating or when pain is felt you not only remove the cause of the trouble and instantly neutralize the harmful acid, but your digestive organs are soothed, healed and strengthened in a wonderful way, and normal healthy digestion results.

Because it is so quick, so safe and so sure in ending digestive troubles, millions recommend "Pape's Diapepsin." "Pape's Diapepsin" is unequalled as an indigestion remedy and food corrective, yet it costs only 60 cents a package at all druggists.

If your stomach ever torments you get Pape's Diapepsin at once and recapture the pleasure of care-free, painless digestion. Adv.

Farm Notes

DESTROYS RATS

Rats are easily destroyed by blowing calcium cyanide dust into their burrows. The "A" grade dust of this common material is recommended by H. L. Gul, assistant entomologist of the Ohio Experiment Station for destroying rats.

The dust may be blown into the burrows or other places occupied by the animals, by means of a small hand duster.

The quantity of dust to apply will depend upon the size of the burrow or other retreat. Under foundations an ounce or two blown into each hole is usually sufficient. Under floors the dust should be applied at the rate of one pound for each 500 cubic feet of space.

The holes should be closed at once with soft earth to prevent the escape of the deadly hydrocyanic gas which is liberated from the calcium cyanide when it comes in contact with the moisture of the air in the burrows.

Most of the rats will be killed in their nests. Any that may escape are usually more or less overcome with the gas and are easily killed with a club.

Calcium cyanide is very poisonous, but is quite safe to handle if reasonable precautions are observed. It must not be allowed to get into open wounds and the gas given off must not be inhaled.

During the progress of fumigation under the floors of buildings, all domestic animals should be removed from the building above which should not be entered until after the rooms have been thoroughly ventilated.

Rats are more numerous this fall than usual. More detailed information for control programs may be obtained from county agents.

THIS SEAL AIDS DISEASE FIGHT

Here is the authentic anti-tuberculosis Christmas Seal. With the sale of other "Christmas" Seals throughout the city, officials of the Greene County Health League wish to clear any misunderstanding on the part of the public in the sale of the seals.

Children are reported canvassing the city, selling "Christmas Seals" other than the original anti-tuberculosis seal, and the public is warned to have the right idea of the seal, funds from the sale of which will be used in the fight against tuberculosis.

CAMPAIGN FOR BIGGER VOTE

Campaigns are already beginning to get out a bigger vote for presidential year. Citizens will be urged not merely to vote at the elections of next November, but at the equally important primaries that will nominate delegates next spring to the presidential conventions.

In opposition to these efforts, we have stubborn forces. The worst of these is the indifference of millions of citizens. As long as they have a job and enough to live on with decent comfort, they will not trouble their heads with politics.

There is a somewhat smaller but influential class of people also, who entertain very cynical views of politics. They say that these results are fixed up by bosses and rings and machines, and that it is impossible for the common run of voters to buck against these powerful influences. They argue that it is no use wasting time on political action, when the result will be unsatisfactory whichever way it goes.

All these indifferent and cynical people should realize that when they abstain from voting, they play into the hands of those who use politics for selfish purposes. If all the people who want good government would get out and vote, they would constitute such a powerful influence that the politicians would have to quit practices that are objectionable. They would be forced to nominate and elect high grade candidates, and political evils would largely vanish.

But as long as so many citizens stand aloof, and won't soil their hands, as some of them express it, with the dirty mess of politics, so long many political results will be unsatisfactory. Government is no doubt improving on the whole, as people gain in intelligence, but it would improve much faster if all the intelligent people would get out and vote.

DOCTRINE OF MIND MASTERY

Is the simple application of American common sense succeeding where a hundred mystic creeds and "isms" have failed—in making the ordinary man complete master of his own mind and capable of molding a successful career?

Many of the country's leading psychologists and educators are beginning to believe so as they center their attention on the work of J. Franklin Wright of Detroit, one-time railroad switchman. Wright, although still obscure to the general public, has within a few years built a following of tens of thousands who credit his elementary method of mental discipline with turning them from mediocre, and even criminal-minded, men and women into self-sufficient and successful individuals.

The seriousness with which Wright, who accepts no pay for his work, has come to be regarded by scientific minds and reputable agencies is evidenced in a current magazine article in which Albert Edward Wiggam, the scientist-author, after an investigation of Wright's activities, declares the Detroit man's program of character-building has met with "a most astounding success."

"Wright has no new psychological discovery, no patent will-power device by which you can lift yourself by your psychological bootstraps. His whole method is in teaching people how to think right thoughts instead of wrong ones," says Mr. Wiggam. "He appeals chiefly to your reason and shows you why it pays to be good."

The effectiveness of Wright's methods are shown, Mr. Wiggam cites, by the fact that his organization, "The Pathfinders of America," now has seven trained teachers instilling his methods of habit-formation in the thousands of Detroit school children with the sanction of school authorities. Similar work is being carried on in Cleveland schools and has been begun among 4,000 New York school children.

Wright found that if he was to be what he wanted to be he must build up sound reasons in the directions of the right desire. He saw that thinking of the right thing at the right time is the chief solution of habit formation.

The Way of the World

INDIAN RUNNERS

Bellamy says he saw six Indians run a ten-mile race and not one of them was under 55 years of age. He adds that the real Navajo test of a 14-year-old boy is his ability to run three days and three nights without rest.

Nobody can persuade you that it is necessary for you to be a marathon runner to be happy or to prosper.

More backyards and front porches, however, where the whole family can enjoy the fresh air will strengthen the nation.

A CURB ON THE TONGUE

The next time an unkind thought arises out of the heart and an unkind word to the lips, may not remember the line from "Julius Caesar" which goes like this: "What private griefs they have alas! I know not." And stopping a little longer in the kingdom of poetry may we call on Tennyson who sang: "Never morning wore to evening but some heart did break."

The constant inability to gauge the intimate life of another ought to make us very careful.

LET'S BE LENIENT

It has been said that at twenty years of age the will reigns; at thirty, the wit; and at forty, the judgment. Not true. We who have passed forty know how complicated life's problems often are. We know how frequently judgment does not prevail with us—but rather will and desire. That knowledge ought to make us tolerant of youth. Many of us who have lived twice as many years as the youngsters know how badly we have done. That ought to make us both thoughtful and considerate when we lay down our lessons.

The Daybook

OF A

New Yorker

By Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The intelligence, as some wag has nicknamed them have a game with which to while away the long time between drinks at parties of an evening. For some months Judge has paid $5 apiece for this word game and some of them are cropping up nightly as original which originally appeared in Judge. Walter Winchell, ringmaster for a circus of wisecracks on the Graphic, reports some of these that I reported in this column last February; but then the game is only now becoming epidemic and something of a plague.

One of the earliest, reported by your correspondent last February, was Marc Connelley's, "I can make a sentence with the word Machiavelli. I'll Machiavelli fine suit for $25."

Came then sentences with the words Winchell, Turin, conceal, Listerine, Addison Mizner, etc., etc., as "Winchell these three meet again?" "Is there a Doc Turin in the audience?" "Jack conceal went up the hill?" "Listerine while I tell you of the Spaniard that blasted my life?" "I knew she was a good girl as soon Addison Mizner."

The comparatively new slang word, "racket," meaning a method of supplementing one's income by some enterprise outside of one's job, has given away to another word "dodge" when the "racket" is slightly shady in character. There are, of course, respectable and legitimate "rackets." The head-waiter of a restaurant may have a "racket" by being a partner in a cloak-room concession or in a shooting-gallery or a ticket-agency. A "dodge," however, is a side income from some phony business.

"Dodge," of course, is an old slang word revived. It was popular in the country during the Civil War and afterward. It was a favorite word with Dickens.

On the New York, New Haven and Hartford line, on which I commute, the conductors are remarkably speedy in collecting and punching tickets. The other day a young woman sat beside me in a train going to Mamaroneck. The conductor punched our tickets at 125th street. Later, after we left the New Rochelle station, the conductor appeared and asked my seat companion if her ticket was good only to New Rochelle. Greatly embarrassed, she admitted it was, and paid her fare to Rye, three stations away. These train-borne New Rochelle casuals, their duties, but it will be a passenger who succeeds in pulling a fast one on them.

The shirker who annoys me most is the one who gets into a revolving door just before or behind me and doesn't do his share of the pushing.

KELLYGRAMS

by Fred C. Kelly

Irish Observations. SOUTHERN IRELAND, especially County Kerry, as we hasten along toward the lakes of Killarney, is surprisingly similar to the more rugged, less settled sections of Connecticut.

It had never occurred to me that Ireland would turn out to be so mountainous. The hills and stone walls suggest New England, but the unique feature here is the small fields, each one bounded by a stone wall. On a distant hillside, the effect is of shadowy subdivisions almost as irregular and unsystematic as the lines in the palm of your hand.

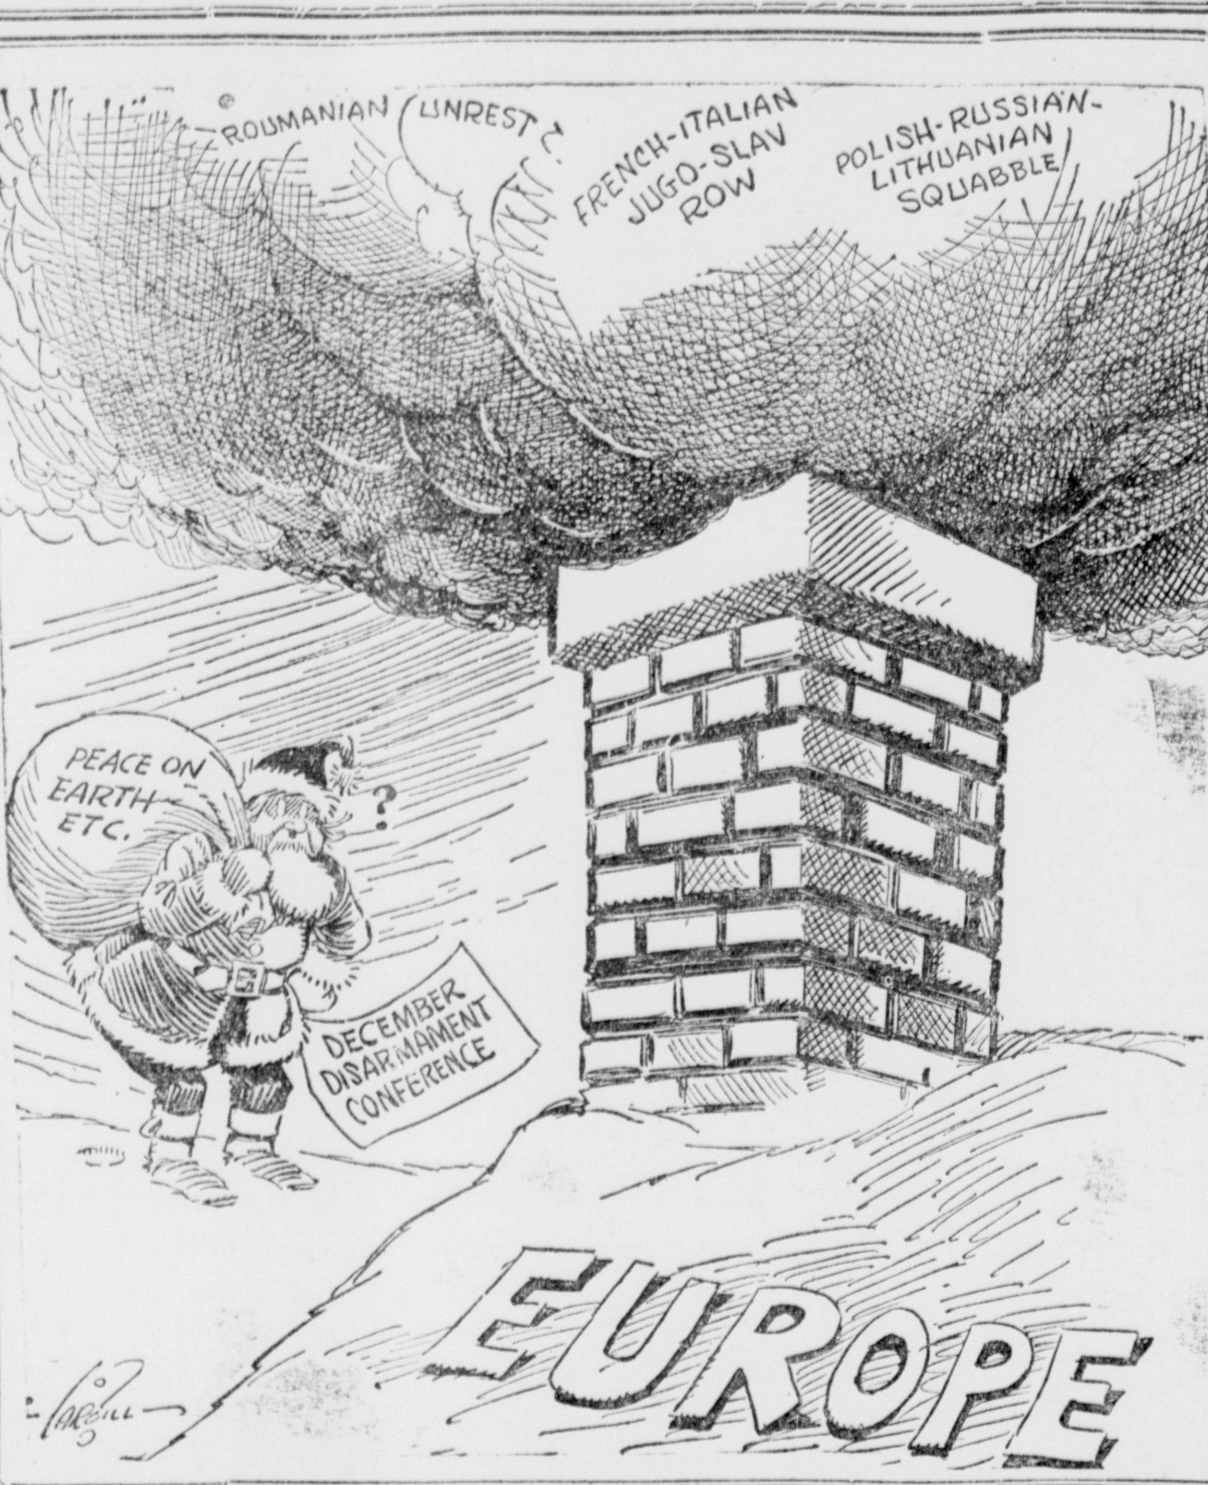

Many of these stone walls have been standing so many hundreds of years that they are as green as golf bunkers. Little blades of grass must have taken root in the crevices, withered, and helped to make soil for more numerous blades of grass and other growth, until the crevices have gradually become covered with solid turf. No wonder it's an ideal sporting country. As these walls are low, and wire fences rarely occur, one may ride to the hounds in almost any direction.

Fields of grazing land are so much more numerous than those in crops that a sportsman on horseback could easily avoid tramping down a farmer's grain.

It's easy to see how the Irish form the habit of taking interest in politics. Since this is a pastoral rather than an agricultural country, men set forth in the morning to watch their sheep or cattle rather than to till the soil. Groups of men keeping tab on various flocks or herds, can get together and pass the time in conversation. What could be more natural than for them to talk politics?

We just stopped to talk with an old chap, aged about 90, who said his name is Dunecree. I misunderstood him at first and asked: "You say it is Dunecree?" "Cree" was his brief reply, with a sharp rising accent. Instead of repeating his whole name, he preferred to save his breath by giving me only the syllable I had wrong.

How to Achieve Beauty

Protecting Your Hands Against Winter Roughness and Redness

Hands that preside at a coffee urn, that play the piano or violin, or even that help a charming woman to express her thoughts and personality, should be milk-white and as soft as silk.

The winter months demand more of hands than any other time of year, for these are the height of the social season. Tennis courts and golf links are not so demanding.

Yet it is one of the eternal paradoxes that no other season will make hands look worse than winter does if they are not properly cared-for. Winds and cold, roughen and redden them. Artificial heat dries them out. They blotch with red or purple, and if a bit of dampness remains when you go out into the cold, they are rough and sore in no time. Many women suffer from chilblains which, to say nothing of their painfulness, make the hands stiff and blotchy with red or purple.

To prevent them, put your hands in cold water as soon as you come in out of the cold. Cocoa butter or a good cream are excellent for overcooling them.

To restore whiteness and softness to weather-hardened hands, massage them two or three times a day with a softening hand cream. Before going to bed at night, rub anti-wrinkle cream into them and then put on gloves, from which the fingers have been cut, to prevent soiling the bed clothes.

Always after you wash your hands, rub a little hand lotion on them. A few drops of glycerine is excellent for many women, although it is irritating to the skin of some. Winters always get the best results by rubbing in a small amount of face cream that is made by a pasteurized process. Put this on while your hands are still wet, then dry them. You will find that it leaves them very soft and white and gives them an excellent protection against chapping.

Hands need so little care to keep them attractive that there is really no excuse for any woman to leave them unlovely. My next talk on winter beauty will take up the subject, "Counteract the Complexion Ravages of Artificial Heat."

Answers to Mothers

God could not be everywhere; therefore He made mothers.

—Jewish Proverb

Anti-Scurvy Food

A young mother wants to know if it would be safe to give her baby, two months old, a teaspoonful of orange juice once a day. Some of her friends tell her it will give the baby a shock and might kill it! Still others tell her it is fine for its stomach.

Answer—Your friends who tell you orange juice is fine for the baby's stomach are the right ones, young mother, although it isn't for its immediate effect on the stomach that we give it. It is given to prevent scurvy. It is usually customary to begin the orange juice at about three months, but I can assure you it is not going to kill your baby, nor shock it, if you give it at two months. The secret of giving a baby any new food is to gradually increase so that its little digestive system has time to develop the digestive ferments and juices. If mothers cannot get orange juice for some reason, then tomato juice—canned or raw—or cabbage or turnip juice can be given. In the case of cabbage and turnips, these should be ground very fine and the pulp squeezed in a piece of clean cloth, with very clean hands or a press. Beginning as early as at two or three months, it would be wise to begin with not over a quarter of a teaspoonful well diluted with water, and increase a quarter of a teaspoonful every day until two or four tablespoons are given. It can be given between feedings, first and then later just before a feeding, if more convenient.

Even nursing babies should have young mother, so please send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for mothers and guardians. This list contains books on children's care in general, on feed-some anti-scurvy juice. You need a good textbook on feeding your baby, on sex instruction and exercise.

NOTE: "Please send ten cents in COIN and fully self-addressed stamped envelope with orders for pamphlets on diet and health."

MENU HINT

Winter is the pie season. In summer it is generally too warm for such a heavy dessert unless a very light meal be planned. Apple pie is a great favorite, then pumpkin, mince, cranberry, and with any number of "open faced" pies with meringue on top, keep mother busy and the family happy. I don't recommend pie for dessert where there are children. Milk puddings, ice cream and gelatin concoctions are better for little folks, but an occasional pie, especially if eaten in the middle of the day, would scarcely harm the older school children. Enough pie crust may be made at one time to make two or three pies, enough being used for one and the rest put in the refrigerator or other cool place, to be made up as needed.

Today's Recipes

Pumpkin Pie Substitute—Peel sweet potatoes and boil till done, mash with potato masher, measure out one and one-fourth cup mashed sweet potato, one-fourth cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, melted, one-half teaspoon cinnamon and allspice, one-eighth teaspoon each cloves and nutmeg, one-half teaspoon salt, one egg, slightly beaten, one tablespoon flour, one cup sweet milk. Mix in order given, pour into pie tin lined with pastry and bake lightly with cinnamon. Bake in moderate oven. Makes one pie.

Baked Halibut—To prepare the fish, wash the slices as they come from the market and dry carefully. Lay them in a buttered baking dish. Season one-half cup milk with salt and paprika, and pour over the fish. Bake in a moderate oven for half an hour, basting occasionally. Then place on a hot platter without breaking the fillets.

Cheese Sauce—One cup of cream sauce, made with one tablespoon each of flour and butter, and one cup of milk. Stir until smooth, then cook for two minutes, and then add one snap-py cheese broken in pieces. Keep it not until the cheese has melted, but do not let it cook. A double boiler is the safest container in preparing this sauce.

Potato Puff—Two cups mashed potatoes, two tablespoons melted butter, two eggs, one-half cup scalded milk, salt to taste. Stir the melted butter into the potatoes. Beat until creamy; add eggs beaten very light and then the milk and seasonings. Bake in a deep buttered dish in a quick oven for about twenty minutes, or until nicely browned.

Escalloped Potatoes—Take four medium sized white potatoes, peel, slice very thin and place in cold water for a short time. Drain and place a layer in the bottom of a baking dish. Sprinkle with flour and grated cheese and continue until potatoes are used. In the last layer of potatoes lay thin slices of bacon; sprinkle with flour, salt and pepper. Pour on enough milk to about cover the potatoes, then put in moderate oven for about one hour.

Mock Cherry Pie—One cup cranberries, one-half cup seedless raisins, one cup boiling water, one cup sugar, one tablespoon flour, one teaspoon vanilla. Boil a few minutes. Bake between two crusts.

Behind the Scenes

in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Un- less President Coolidge comes out flatfooted Dec. 5, against more than eight years for any one man in the White House, Washington will make up its mind that he's willing to be drafted next year.

On Dec. 5 congress will meet. The president's message will be read. It will be an appropriate time and place for him to go officially on record, and clear up every bit of doubt and uncertainty, if he wants to. If he fails to do it, it will generally be assumed that he doesn't want to.

It doesn't settle the argument to say that the president announced he doesn't "choose" to run again, and that that ends it, because it doesn't necessarily end it, by any means. Cal must know he left a lot of people wondering if he mightn't run anyway, even though he doesn't "choose"—if drafted.

Suppose a guest at your house declines any more turkey; and you urge him to take some more; and he sidesteps a repetition of his original refusal—aren't you justified in suspecting that he'll eat another helping, if it's forced on him?

On the theory that the President will have nothing further to say about another term, unless he has to, a plot is brewing to make him say something, one way or the other, whether or not he "chooses."

Senator LaFollette will introduce a measure early in the coming session, looking toward a constitutional amendment limiting any president to two full terms (President Coolidge, of course if renominated and re-elected, will have two and a fraction).

The scheme to get this proposition through congress and up to Cal, to sign or veto—fish or cut bait, so to speak.

Its weakness is that congress won't pass it. The senate probably will—but this house of representatives, never—that is, if it will embarrass President Coolidge. Still, it may make an annoying amount of talk.

If any drafting's to be done, the talk can't be helped.

If, on the other hand, the president positively doesn't want to run again, in 1928, under any circumstances, he can take the pep campaign, by declaring explicitly that he's opposed, in principle, to a president's reelection more than just once—regardless of the length of his initial tenure, or of the fashion in which he got in the first time.

A paragraph like this, in the presidential message, would end all suggestions of drafting at once, but if that's the president's meaning, why not?

Congress could go ahead then and pass the LaFollette measure as overwhelmingly as it liked—there'd be no sting in it for President Coolidge. On the contrary, it would be an endorsement of his position, or perhaps the most important question raised in American history since George Washington gave the country to understand he didn't want to be king.

Indeed, it would hardly be necessary for congress to act. The president would be about binding enough.

In case this is what the president does, it would be most unfair to surmise that the prospect of congressional action—or talk—would influence him.

For all anybody knows, he's had it in mind all along.

Ransacking scribbles on the back of envelopes, from pockets of his old clothes, historians of 2027 may find out more about it than we know now.

"Rastus, your dog seems to be in pain."

"No, suh—he ain't in pain; he's just lazy."

"But he must be suffering or he wouldn't howl like that."

"Jes' plumb lazy; jes' laziness; representatives, never—that is, if it he's settin' on a thistle."

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

What Can the Poor Girl Do?

What's to be done if a girl is in love—or thinks she is—with a boy and he doesn't know where she is and so cannot make love to her if he wants to?

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am in great distress and am writing for help. Before I went away on a visit this summer I was traveling around with a number of boy friends. I used to enjoy going out with them, but since I came home I am always making excuses so as not to accept their dates. I care only for girl friends' company. I met a young man whom I think a lot of. I have never been in love, but do you think this is my trouble now? Would you advise me to write to him? He doesn't know where I live. "IN DISTRESS."

Gracious yes, write to him and tell him where you live. He may be suffering, even as you are, and it is up to you to let him know where he may find you. You may not be in love, but it does look as if you were a bit interested in this boy, doesn't it? And now come a couple of "babies in the woods" who want to know whether they should get married.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am 17 and have been going with a certain party for about one year, he being 18. We are greatly in love with each other and understand each other quite well. We have been thinking of getting married at Christmas. Would you suggest waiting when we know we will be happy right now?"

"BRIGHT EYES."

I think you are both very young, my dear. Few boys of 18 are financially able to support a wife, and few young persons of your age are stable enough in their affections to be sure they have met their right mates. What do your parents say?

Always glad to welcome newcomers to our circle, even when they want something I can't supply.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I'm a newcomer to your circle and hope I am a welcome. I'm looking for a real pal. I am 21 and enjoy all kinds of sports, such as hiking, dancing, skating, etc. Have gone about with quite a few fellows, but have not met one I could call a real pal. Are all the fellows the same? Do they all believe the only way to enjoy themselves is by petting? REAL PAL."

If you've been reading the columns, Real Pal, you know that there are many letters from boys who prefer to be "real pals" instead of petting. I am sure there are some in town, and I am afraid it will be up to you to find them.

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

Safe for the Serpents' Long Sleep

"Say, Two-Legs, you never saw such a lot of happy serpents in all your life," went on Rattler. "Those who had writhed with cold and discouragement now wriggled with joy, and 'twas I who had wrought the change." Rattler reared his head, quite as proud of himself now in the telling of the tale as he had been that morning in autumn so long ago. Peter was as interested as any boy could be.

"What did those neighbors say to your plan?" asked he. "Not much. Serpents aren't a talkative lot, you know. But their actions spoke louder than words. They elected me pathfinder, and so, at their head, I crawled off to lead the way to the Cave. But 'twas far, far away, far off now in the telling of the tale as he had been that morning in autumn so long ago. Peter was as interested as any boy could be.

"Hum! This is a great place to bring us to," chimed old Uncle Twelve-Rattles. "Tis so dark we can scarcely see our buttons behind us, and here we are on the top of the world!"

"Most of the Rattlers grumbled with him, but the youngest, crawling or leaped far over the ledge. "One false crawl and over we go!" hissed he, in great excitement. "What sport! I'm ready to follow you to the cave, neighbor, Lead on!"

not hold? Brace up, old fellow. They will, but even suppose they don't, and you go tumbling into the depths. There are so many of us you'll never be missed!"

"I stuck out my tongue at the old grumbler and started over the ledge. It was steeper than the side of a barn. Down, down, down I crawled, inch by inch, and at last I reached the ledge, the front door of the cave. "Come on, comrades!" cried I. "Hold fast to the rock; crawl slow and soon you'll reach the goal. I'm going inside to make room for you on the ledge!"

"Then, good scout that I was, I crawled inside the deep, black hole, poked my nose into every nook and corner, and make quite sure that the cave was safe for the Serpents' long sleep."

"That's the spirit!" cried I. "Nothing venture, nothing gain! You needn't join us, Uncle Twelve-Rattles, if you think you can find a better hiding place. Are you afraid your scales will

EX-SERVICE MEN HAVE UNTIL JANUARY 1 TO COLLECT BONUS

All ex-service men or women, of the army, navy or marine corps, who have not collected their share of the honorarium voted them by congress three years ago over the veto of President Coolidge, must do so before January 1, 1928.

Of the 5,500,000 ex-service men entitled to the World War Adjusted Compensation, more than 500,000 have failed to make application for the bonus and 40,000 others, whose applications were filed incorrectly, failed to return corrected applications when they were returned to them.

These procrastinators who wish to make application may do so this way:

- 1.—Obtain from the nearest post-office or from Miss Yeola Purdon, executive secretary, American Red Cross, at the chapter office in the Court House, an application blank;
- 2.—Read the instruction leaflet, which shows that discharge papers must accompany application blanks and that if discharge papers are lost, memory may serve;
- 3.—Fill out the blank legibly, honestly, correctly, not forgetting to furnish fingerprints and two signatures;
- 4.—Address the envelope which comes with the blank to that branch of the service to which you were last assigned—to the Adjutant General, Bureau of Navigation or Marine Corps, both in Washington, D. C.

The bonus bill provided for com-

CHILD STRUCK BY AUTO IS UNHURT

Edwin Mercer, five-year-old son of John Mercer, W. Main St., was knocked down but not injured by an auto driven by Robert McClain, Upper Bellbrook Pike, while the child was playing with companions on W. Second St. at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon, it was reported to police.

McClain, traveling west, had practically stopped his car to avoid hitting another boy and had started the machine again when the Mercer boy darted in front of the auto. The car was moving slowly.

The Mercer boy was taken home. Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, investigated, and notified Dr. Frank M. Chambliss, who examined the boy and pronounced him free from even a scratch.

Safe, effective, quick relief without causing griping or head buzzing. Musterole Cold Tablets are prepared by makers of famous Musterole used for relieving muscular pains and chest troubles. All Druggists. 35c. The Musterole Company, Cleveland, O.

"SICK-HEADACHES?"

Torturing, maddening! Most always trace them to a lazy liver, constipation and a sour-sick stomach. Poison of fermented foods retained, instead of passing, is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissues, it causes congestion and that acute, sickening pain.

Blackburn's Casca-Royal Pills quickly and surely remove the cause by stimulating the liver, toning up the bowels, nerves, making the poison-ferments move on and out, thus purifying the blood and curing the headaches. The effect is almost instantaneous.

Women, because of their sensitive organism are especially prone to periodical headaches, should not suffer if a drugstore is nearby—for Blackburn's Casca-Royal Pills have helped millions during the past 25 years. Non-secret formula, small, sweet, prompt and "Better Than Castor Oil." Two sizes 15c—30c.

Gaines, to Prof. William B. Hughes at the M. E. Church, Hannibal, Mo. Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 24. Miss Gaines has been a teacher in the Wheeling High School, W. Va., and Mr. Hughes is principal of the Lincoln High School in Springfield, Mo.

The Twentieth Century Club will meet Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of Mrs. Florence Scott, E. Main St.

Miss Anna Louise Newhouse of Louisville, Ky., who has been the guest of Mrs. Margaret Watkins Hardoon, E. Second St., returned to her home Wednesday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Gilliam and grand daughter, Little Elsie Jones of Yellow Springs, were the week end guests of Mrs. Mildred Simms, E. Church St.

The Missionary Society of the Zion Baptist Church held an excellent session Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. L. Dooley, E. Market St. The society arranged to send Christmas cheer to many sick and shut-in persons. The missionary lesson taught by Mrs. Kennedy was helpful as well as instructive. The next regular meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Viola Hubbard, in January, 1928.

THIS SCOURGE WAS DRAGGING HIM DOWN

ALL-BRAN gave him new lease on life when it checked constipation

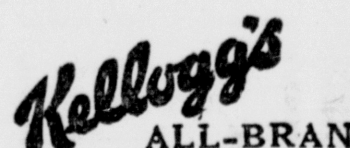

No matter how chronic constipation has become—no one need give up hope of relief. Read Mr. Williams' cheery message:

"I am on the down-grade in life. Never had any sickness, but of late years have been troubled with constipation. Began to make up my mind that I was about done up. Have taken tablets, eaten fruits, etc., but did not get much help. Began to use your ALL-BRAN twice a day. Have gained 6 pounds. Feel like a fighting cock. Bowels are regular. You have certainly done a lot for humanity."

L. C. WILLIAMS, Boston, N. Y.

ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Eat two table-spoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend Kellogg's because it is 100% bran—100% effective.

Delicious with milk or cream—and add fruits or honey. Ready to eat. Fine in cooking. Sold and served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Recipes on package.

Headaches

Often the result of kidney disorder; due to imperfect kidney action. Men and women everywhere use and recommend Foley Pills diuretic for welcome relief. They satisfy.

The Theater

Charles Brackett, critic for "The New Yorker," admitted "Coquette" by George Abbott and Ann Preston Bridges at the Maxine Elliott, rendered him speechless and then proceeded to write two columns about the piece in the last issue. "Coquette," according to Brackett, is the story of a lovely, gay, light-minded girl upon whom life, which she always found beautiful and caressing, suddenly falls.

Twenty Years '07 - Ago - '27

By winning the return football game with the Eastern Athletic Club at Columbus, 27 to 0, Wilberforce University won the state championship among colored teams.

County Commissioners granted the petition of J. W. Ankeney and others to improve one and one-half miles of the channel of Beavercreek by widening, straightening or deepening it.

Messrs. Charles Phillips and Martin Schmidt, left for the vicinity of Waynesville, where they will hunt rabbits for several days.

A Nickel Buys a Cool Sweet Cigar Made From Fragrant Ripe Tobacco. News for Particular Smokers

Really satisfying smokes at a nickel each! You've probably had hard luck trying to find a genuinely good cigar at five cents. You may say, "There's no such animal." If you'll only try your luck once again, you're going to win!

Don't take our word for it that Havana Ribbon is a cigar that will amaze you. Just dig up a solitary nickel and shove it across the counter in your favorite cigar store. Say "Havana Ribbon" and put a match to a smoke that says "quality" from the first puff.

Havana Ribbon sold at more than a nickel for years. Smokers liked it and bought it by the million. We sold so many that we could bring down the price and improve the cigar. Today we don't think you can buy anything approaching Havana Ribbon for five cents. It costs only a nickel to find out for yourself.

DIVORCE SOUGHT BY WOMAN IN PETITION

Divorce and a reasonable allowance for her separate maintenance are sought in a suit filed in Common Pleas Court by Maude I. George, Wright Memorial Park, Greene County, against Edward M. George, Wright Memorial Park.

They were married September 7, 1906 at Ashland, Wis. No children were born of the union.

Plaintiff charges gross neglect of duty, in that during the past eighteen months, the defendant's attitude toward her has been one of utter indifference, without any regard as to her mental and physical well being.

His treatment of her has been such as to cause her untold suffering, which undermined her health to a point where it was necessary to place herself under the care of a physician, the petition charges. Plaintiff asserts she is unable to continue to live with her husband by reason of her mental and physical condition.

SOCIOLOGIST SAYS RUTH SNYDER COULD BE SPARED DEATH

erred Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, her lover, must die for the murder of Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert Snyder.

Only Governor Al Smith can save them by commuting their sentences.

Should capital punishment be abolished and the plan propounded by Dr. Adler adopted, criminals would be segregated into various classes—the imbeciles and other defectives, first offenders and adult prisoners would be separated. Then they would be subjected to discipline.

Urges Proper Discipline
"Those who have not learned to control their impulses, especially the sudden passionate impulses that lead to the injury of others, must learn to control them. The right discipline has this effect," Dr. Adler declares.

"Again, those who commit depredations on the property of others, whose object is to gain the rewards of labor without labor, must be taught industry, the acquisition of property by the expenditure of effort, as is attempted by introducing instruction in trades and crafts in the best prison systems."

"Segregation from society is necessary. But the prison is not a hotel, it is not a hospital. The prisoner is not a patient who is to be healed of his sickness. He has committed an act or acts which prove that he needs to be re-educated."

"The prison is a school for the re-education of its wards. As a person who has had locomotor ataxia needs to be 're-educated' physically, so a person who has perpetrated the acts called crime needs to be morally re-educated; that is, he needs to be taught to acquire the control of impulse and habits of application, and the sense of social solidarity."

Favors Indeterminate Sentences
"Every sentence should be indeterminate. Any prisoner should remain segregated until impartial experts certify that he has been re-educated sufficiently to go back to society, certify that he is fit to graduate from the school of re-education."

Should all efforts fail to obtain clemency from Governor Smith, Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray enter the death chamber on the day of the execution. She must pass his cell on the way to the chair. Execution is scheduled for week of January 9.

This will be the first time they have seen each other since the day sentence was passed upon them.

Darrow Comments
Ruth and Henry no longer are

lovers—the flame of their passion has died.

No hope for the lives of these two is held by Clarence Darrow, noted criminal lawyer, who saved Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb from the gallows. In an interview he said:

"I think Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray will be electrocuted. The circumstances surrounding the case, the publicity, and the public reaction at the time of the crime seem to assure that."

In the Hudson high-compression design, the raw gas enters through intake valve and falls directly on exhaust valve. The hot exhaust valve is thus a hot spot which thoroughly vaporizes the gasoline, while the liquid tends to keep the valve cool. This makes a cold motor operate on regular gasoline with the snap which other types seek through special fuels. Crankcase dilution is prevented and fuel once wasted is turned to useful power. And there is more power, greater economy and longer life.

Note the special combustion chamber offset from the cylinder bore and the location of the spark plug with relation to the cylinder and piston. Instead of the violent initial explosion taking place immediately above the piston, it occurs at the remotest part of the special chamber, which cushions its severity and greatly increases its power. By the time the pressure reaches the piston, its violent harshness and roughness is entirely absent and the Hudson gets away with the dash and smoothness of a steam engine—and the desirable performance is accomplished with low-grade fuel.

This Leadership exclusive in High-Compression Performance

The almost universal trend to the high-compression motor only serves to emphasize the exclusive method, advantages and results achieved by the Hudson Super-Six in this development.

While conventional types depend upon special, costlier fuels to minimize roughness, the Hudson design uses any gasoline, delivering the extra power with the elastic smoothness of a steam engine.

Combined with the Super-Six principle this new invention makes Hudson the most powerful and economical car per pound weight in the world.

The extraordinary speed of Hudson getaway is but a single expression of the brilliant activity of the New Hudson Super-Six, which is carried on to every phase of performance. You see it in the rapidity with which it rolls into high speed; the effortless ease with which it sustains fast going; the long, reliable service through which it maintains its smooth and brilliant performance.

A single ride will explain why this has been the most enthusiastically accepted Hudson ever built.
